Dear Mr. Brunton,

I am sending you herewith a draft of your will as well as your previous will.

Could you, please, write it entirely with your own hand on the included stamped-paper. You must sign after the date.

I have foreseen a sentence explaining that if your son dies before you, your assets will be given to his children. If you do not agree with that, you only cancel it.

Yours faithfully

Dear Ken,

Just a line to say hullo and to ask how you are. I am posting a desk calendar to you which should reach you in good time for the new year. I would like to send P.B. one as well and would be pleased if you confirm that he is still at the same address (i.e. Cive des Alpes 107). I have been promoted to Assistant General Manager in charge of Printing, Photographic Film Unit, Information and Product Development. I retire in 3 years time.

Kindest regards Ken.

Jack.

Dear Mrs. Gullidge,

The sentiments in your letter are much appreciated. ~~His~~ PB meant so much to so many people all over the world. Many never met him but, like yourself, say his books play a major role in their lives.

As his literary executor, I don't think he would want a Biography published, although many people seem to want one. But he opposed any trend to deify him or start a personal cult. He said often "You must find the real PB within yourselves!"

However I have several voluminous notebooks of his and am assembling a team of his students to sort and compile, and we shall see if perhaps we could come out with one or two posthumous books in a few years.

I shall be in Sydney ^{for a week} next March and if you wish to give me your telephone number I'll be glad to give you a ring and we could chat a while.

With upholding wishes, Kennan Heesle

Dear Friend:

I deeply regret to inform you that P.B. passed over on July 27, 1981.

He was hospitalized with a massive cerebral hemorrhage the previous Saturday evening.

Although technically in a coma and unable to move, his full consciousness came through once on that Sunday afternoon, and then for the final twenty minutes as he made his transition. The message was clear: "We shall meet again!" And I'm sure this applies to all who loved him.

The end was peaceful as his breathing gently ceased. Was it an illusion that he seemed to be smiling as to say "Cheer up, don't take it so seriously!"

Even the nurse said "He must have been a very good man, he has such a kind face".

The outer P.B. has gone, but the inner P.B. lives on in the hearts of all who love him.

unforgettable P.B. One is happy for him that he is right you are when you

Dear Ken.

I just wanted to write you because I have been thinking of you so much. I have had a difficult time coping with the loss of P.B. but I imagine that whatever I feel, you must be feeling much much more painfully. I tried to call the other day but there was no answer, I will try again next week. Meanwhile, I am keeping you in my thoughts, hoping that you are able to deal with everything - your feelings and everything else.

It was thoughtful of you to inform me of P. B.'s passing as he was my revered Master and teacher.

He is now beyond time and space, but his voice will always be in the world, therefore we too must conquer life, be at peace, knowing we will meet again.

His penible sojourn is ended at last and the "relenting gods" have now given him "swift passage back to his own starfor whose silvery greenish light he searched the sky every night with acute nostalgia.

Dear Bianca —

The shock is receding. Still much to do, many details to handle, in his name. But all goes smoothly; and the inner power helps. I return to Vervey next month to finalise many legal affairs.

I brought PB's ashes back with me to the USA. A good friend and student, Erna Rosa King, is creating some beautiful marble urns in the shape of a book. I will divide the ashes and give to those who loved him and served him. Would you like to have such an urn? If so, Mrs. King will visit her native Italy in September and could meet you halfway from her home in Verona (say Bolzano?) and give it to you. Please let me know.

Dear Mr. Thurstan Hunt,

I was so happy when I received your letter, although I shed tears, - But happiness was there first and last, as always with him.

Feeling that I might possibly not see him again, I wrote him a letter of good bye in 1979 and the answer I received on a depressing November day, still makes me happy now.

It was so exactly as you describe him in your letter, Smiling, strong, fresh, affirmative. He has gone to the home he missed so much.

Thank you for writing,

I brought PB's ashes back with me to the USA. A good friend and student of PB, Erna Rosa King, is creating some beautiful marble urns in the shape of a book. I will divide the ashes and give to those who loved him and served him. Would you like to have such an urn? If so, I can give it to another close friend and old student, Mr. Broekhuysen, who will meet me in Vevey to help with matters. He lives in Den Haag (The Hague) Holland, and could travel to meet you halfway, perhaps in Eindhoven? Please let me know. With best wishes, to you,

Kenneth Shust.

Dear Irene:

Further to my telegram and letter, you will be interested to know I brought P.B.'s ashes back here to the States.

A mutual friend, Erna Rosa King, has designed a handsome urn in Italian marble in the shape of a book. She will make a small number and we will divide the ashes between them.

Would you like one? If so, I can bring it with me to New Delhi next February when I attend the International Bookfair. Simultaneously we will have a meeting of our Prentice-Hall India regional managers and I can give it to the manager for South India to take back with him to Madras and to deliver it personally to you.

Please let me know.

Sincerely,

Dear Ken,

Please accept my condolences on the death of your father. Although you and I kid each other quite a bit, I want to be serious for just a minute to say that no matter what other legacy your father may have left to this world, he certainly left a fine son -- who has had such a positive influence on so many people, certainly including myself. (That's probably the last compliment you are likely to get from me -- so cherish it.) Well maybe just one more to express appreciation for your thoughtfulness in sending me the Tofu book. I can't wait to get into it on the train this afternoon -- so much for that report I was to read.

Best wishes.

Cordially,

Dear Mr. Hurst

These are just a few insufficient words to express to you something about P.B. Naturally there was grief at the news, yet on reflection it turned out to be quite inappropriate to shed even one tear because there is no such thing as death when P.B. is concerned. To me, not only to me, he is the Self, the Overself which assumed human form, incarnation, for a time in order to remind us of this liberating comforting truth, the knowledge of which brings us to our divine origin. From the very beginning of this sacred association with him he made it clear never to ~~be~~ attach oneself with his human presence but rather to identify with the eternal Higher Power he was expressing.

to her. When my mother asked him whether he was implying her death he said "I never said that." Yet some weeks later this event entered that experience he foresaw.

So to mention such a Being as went by the name of B. would be an insult to all he has taught.

I just wanted to share with you one more thing. I feel very definitely his blessing which is not at all personal but unmistakable. The strength and refreshment one always experienced in his presence plus the remarks, the humour, all — even the humour at this time! — all that, I feel as if it were my own, yet I know that it is not. Dear Mr Hurst

Thank you very much for your note about P.B. I learnt about it from Miss Lussi who also assisted P.B. with his work. The sudden physical departure, amidst his never ceasing work, has been greeted with a sense of great loss, however temporary it may be, and perhaps also a sign of things to come in the more immediate future.

Miss Lussi has also told me that his works to date would be taken to the USA and assembled there. I realize that this task is of a tremendous size and importance, however, I would be grateful if any further information was available, that someone could let me know. I have been asked by Miss Lussi if I could act as an intermediary between any friends of P.B. in the West and in Czechoslovakia (at least those who are known to either myself or my friends), and I shall be more than pleased to do so, but without trying to impose.

Some time ago I offered any help or assistance I could afford to give to P.B., and my offer is repeated now, to you and your colleagues, should you have any need of it.

I do not wish to burden you with my requests, but please try to understand, that I would like to be able to help friends in my country to obtain some information about any new works etc, as they are totally dependent on snippets of information from various sources (not always very reliable and selfless), and as his works are totally forbidden (officially) they are extremely rare to obtain. I do not want to create an impression I am the only one who wishes to help, just one of them. It is not my intention to force you into any correspondence, so please do not be offended if I have created this impression by this letter. Maybe if you and your colleagues ever decide to use my offer of help, you will be kind enough to contact me at the address given at the head of this letter.

Many thanks once again for your note,

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr Hurst,

How very kind of you to inform us of the passing of Beloved Paul. I have shed very many tears since your letter arrived, for surely, he meant so much to me, although I never met him personally.

John, my beloved son, and I would love to meet you, so if you come to England we would be delighted to welcome you to our home, where we partake of the purest vegetarian food, drink no alcohol, and do not smoke. John indeed is a life vegetarian, has not drunk alcohol + never smoked, I have been both Father + Mother to him since he was 2½ years old, and also his beloved sister, Dawn Mary, my angelic daughter who passed over on the 11th April 1975. - Now John + I live quite alone.

With my heartfelt thanks for writing to us.
God ever bless you.

Yours Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Hurst,

My mother and I were deeply touched to receive your letter about the passing of Paul Brunton. It was most kind of you to have informed us. Although we never met on the outer planes, he has been a guru to us through his books, and through letters, since 1953. He has been a great teacher to many thousands throughout the world, through the many languages in which his works have been translated. His was a truly great spiritual mission of a unique kind, going from the west to the east, and bringing back and reinterpreting the highest wisdom in a way that was not only truly inspired, but designed to help each individual soul who read his works. Particular favourites of ours are The Inner Reality (which I had with me throughout my world wide travels) and The Quest of the Overself. We have all his books, of course. Following the Mystic Path under his guidance, has been the true Way Home.

Many sincere and devout followers of many religious paths may pray, and try to ascend in spiritual consciousness, but how can one come into the Presence when the mind is like a merrygoround? Paul Brunton has shown us how, given us simple but wise and the most profound counsel. There is not a page of his writings that one cannot open and find there some potent message to help one in one's daily life, following the path of spiritual consciousness. Thousands must feel the same sense of gratitude to his splendid spirit, and his immense dedication to discovering what true spirituality really is, beyond the veils of religious doctrine or theories or theatricals. He was, and is, one of the world's greatest spiritual teachers, through his writings.

Years ago, I wrote and told him about my work as a composer, and how helpful I found his writings, including the passages about inspirational work. Although thousands of miles away, he could perceive my physical condition, and sent me a letter of wise advice. My First and Second Symphonies were awarded the Royal Philharmonic Society Prize. The Symphony no. 1 (The Mystic), has at last been given its world premiere and a second performance, by the BBC, and I have received appreciative letters from listeners all over the country. The work would be particularly meaningful to any reader of P.B., and gathers up the influence on me of the writings of many of the world's greatest mystics through history, my love of mountains (especially the Himalayas, from where I wrote to P.B.), of nature, of beautiful gardens, calm lakes, waterfalls and the sea in all its strength, the sky, the sun, the vivid and delicate colours and scents of flowers in my lovely garden, the soaring arches and intricate designs of the great Gothic cathedrals, with their lovely sanctuaries, which were conceived by great mystics, although used since then in ways that often are far removed from the high spiritual idealism which guided their upward lifting designs. The Symphony begins and ends on the heights, is full of rhythmic complexities and vitality, and lyrical melodies, particularly the "Agnus Dei... dona nobis pacem" theme for strings in the middle, and heard at the gentle close. The work symbolizes spiritual overcoming, and the search for and achievement of a spiritual peace and joy. I have been most touched by the response engendered in so many listeners, and hope we shall soon be out of this recession and that some gramophone company will be able to record it. I recently lectured on the Symphony for London University, showing colour slides beforehand, of all that I have mentioned above, including the major Himalayan peaks.

I am also a landscape painter in oils and watercolours, and do sketches and paintings of places I have visited all over the world.

My Piano Concerto has been given several broadcast performances in this country, and other orchestral works. My Symphonic Dances performed some years ago by the Hallé Orchestra, had a middle movement inspired by my Himalayan visit, and was entitled Sunrise on Kanchenjunga and Morning Dance. The other movements are Song of the Tui and The Call of the Sea.

I have a recently completed Violin Concerto which the BBC hope to launch next year. I have sent a tape recording of some of the major works to America (including Boston) recently, and I felt very honoured a little while back, to be one of ten living British composers with an entry in Who's Who in the World (Marquis, Chicago) and Who's Who in Europe. If a financial backer becomes interested in my works, then it will become possible for them to be recorded.

I have lectured for Oxford and London Universities, and I know from the reaction of many mature students, that so much modern music seems either coarse (the pop scene) or harsh, hysterical, full of tension and the passing spirit of this modern age. P.B. was right, when he said that the great masters wrote from the heart, and this has encouraged me to plough my own furrow, producing music that is full of melody and which has those moments of great stillness that is part of their spiritual message.

I am working on a full-scale opera, about the triumph of overcoming: Odysseus, for which I shall design all the sets and lighting effects. I shall work on it in the assurance that when it is ready, God will find the right opening, the right company to launch it. I feel the need to act as a servant to try and help change the face of so much modern music, to bring new melodies to touch the heart, but also to explore all the profound emotions leading to their spiritual resolution. This is what makes Wagner such a great composer: most of his works are concerned with a process of spiritual liberation and redemption, allegorical myths that are true for all time. Sri Aurobindo and other mystics recognized the unconscious mystic in Wagner; his allegory on the love of power, that can only be healed by the power of Love, in The Ring, is unique in its way. For twenty years I have been working on a major study of his music-dramas. A publisher in New York (OUP) is keenly interested, and I am busy putting the finishing touches to it. It was to have been in two volumes, but the recession has driven many publishers out of business, and I am engaged on condensing all my material into what I hope will be a very readable and fascinating account of all the works, in a way they have not been done before: most of the thousands of books on Wagner are very superficial. The mystical meaning of the music dramas as allegories will be explained in the final epilogue.

So in composing, writing and painting, I am fully engaged. As a solo pianist I have given recitals all over the English speaking world, but I only do a little playing at the moment, with so much creative work. It may be that an opening will arise that will enable me to concentrate totally on creative work and music making, and less time in teaching and administration.

My recent course at the London University Summer School, has been on The Holy Grail: Mystical Myth and Music Drama. We considered Lohengrin and Parsifal in depth, and had many profound philosophical discussions with my adult students, as to what the Holy Grail really was in terms of spiritual consciousness, the Cup of the Soul that is filled to overflowing by the Divine Love, suggested, long before Christ, in Psalm 23.

There is no part of my life and work that does not reflect the influence on me of Paul Brunton, and just as I know we have met in past lives, so will we meet in the night watches and later, for times of spiritual reflection. My mother often wrote to him, and felt his loss as that of the most dear friend. She is devoted to reading his books, and spends many hours each day in reading them and in prayer. We will always bless him, and feel him as having contributed so much to the quality of our lives, and thereby being a part of that. We are grateful for your communication, and I have felt moved to share with you all these thoughts, as signs and hands across the ocean, of the width and depth of effect of his writings. He does indeed live on in his deeds, and in the hearts of all who love him, and will love him.

With kindest greetings from us both,
and all blessings.

John Luke Rose.

Dear Kenneth,

Thank you for your telegram and kind Message from P. B.

Yes, I have already notified the friends in USSR, Prof. Clarke Australia, Dr. De Boni Verona, Mr. Schmitz Germany and Mr. Gertrude Brabec Austria. I am going to let them know the Message too, but only the nearest ones.

I remember about 10 years ago, during a visit at Montreux, P. B. ^{was} holding his hand my birthday wishes for him, ad multos Annos. He did not look well pleased with them and remarked that I wanted to fasten him to the earth. I knew then better than ever that for him to be among us on this earth meant sacrifice and even suffering, compensated only by his Infinite Love and compassion for us and by our devotion to him; but for all that he would at least be happy to be released from this earthly life. He has done his work completely, for Short Path hints are numerous in all of his books. Thank to the American Students his last notes will also be united into a book.

Yes, He lives on in our hearts.

English Wills and Trusts in Switzerland

by Michael Brandon, an English Barrister resident near Geneva, Switzerland

The purpose of this article is to examine certain problems of English wills and trusts in relation to U.K. citizens resident and domiciled in Switzerland.¹

Firstly, certain foreigners considered resident and domiciled in Switzerland under Swiss law, including U.K. citizens, are in a privileged position insofar as will-making is concerned.² Thus, the Federal Law of 25th June, 1891 on Civil Law Relations of Citizens Established or Residing in Switzerland which permits under Article 22, para 2, a Swiss to declare that his will shall be governed by the law of his Canton of origin, allows by Article 32 such a declaration to apply by analogy to foreigners domiciled in Switzerland. This means in effect that nationals of countries which have not concluded treaties on the subject with Switzerland — and those which have concluded such treaties (the United States being one) are excluded under Article 28 of the Law of June 1891 — may make a "professio juris" in favour of their own national law. This is the position of U.K. citizens.

It is open to a U.K. citizen to make a will under Swiss law. However, whereas Swiss law imposes considerable restrictions on testamentary freedom, there are no restrictions as such under English law and the present legislation which is the Inheritance (Provision for Family and Dependents) Act, 1975, and which applies where the death occurs on or after 1st April, 1976, is based upon a discretionary system whereby a surviving spouse or other person entitled to apply³ must persuade the Court that the deceased failed to make "reasonable financial provision" for him or her. However, under this Act it is essential to establish that the deceased died domiciled in England and Wales. It is therefore of no concern to an English person domiciled according to English law in Switzerland who may exercise the abovementioned right to make his will under English law without regard to the 1975 Act.

The question therefore arises as to the extent of the testamentary freedom available to an English person domiciled in Switzerland and making an English will. Since neither the Swiss restrictions nor the English family provision legislation apply to such a case and since the "professio juris" will extend to both movables and immovables the testator can in theory leave all his assets to an old dogs' home. However, it has been suggested by Swiss writers in this field that in a case where a spouse or minor children were left destitute as a result of their being excluded from such a will, considerations of "ordre public" or "contre bonnes moeurs" could apply or alternatively that if the spouse sought relief in a Swiss Court, the latter applying Swiss private international law rules would look to English law to determine what would have happened had the testator died domiciled in England. This would mean applying the Act of 1975 whereby the spouse or child would be able to seek "reasonable financial provision".

¹ This article is based upon a speech made by the author on this subject before The International Lawyers Club of Geneva on 30th June, 1977.

² All references to Swiss law and practice are derived from information given to the author by practising Swiss lawyers and notaires which is gratefully acknowledged. The author is particularly indebted to the work of Me. A. Necker, La mission de l'exécuteur testamentaire dans les successions internationales, 1972.

³ The class is the surviving spouse, a former unremarried spouse, a child, a person treated by the deceased as a child, and a long-time mistress.

Normally a "Swiss domicile clause" is the first clause to be included by an English testator domiciled in Switzerland in his will. This clause contains a declaration that he has taken up and acquired permanent residence and domicile in Switzerland, where he intends to spend the rest of his life and now regards as his permanent home and that he has abandoned his domicile of origin in one of the countries of the United Kingdom and has no intention of taking up residence again there. It should be noted, however, that such declarations of intention are only one element in the determination of such a testator's domicile and their evidentiary weight will vary from case to case.⁴ The striking difference between the rates of Capital Transfer Tax (CTT) in the U.K. and Swiss Cantonal and Communal Succession Duty rates is usually the reason for these declarations.⁵

It is advisable, if possible, that a U.K. citizen having acquired a domicile of choice in Switzerland and having made an English will should arrange his affairs so as to leave no assets at the date of his death in the U.K. This then avoids the need for any application for a grant of probate or administration⁶ in order to deal with any such assets and consequently also avoids the usual enquiry instigated by the Board of Inland Revenue. Under the Convention between the U.K. and Switzerland for Relief from Double Taxation with respect to Taxes on the Estates of Deceased Persons of June 1956 certain situs rules now applicable to CTT are laid down. It is provided, inter alia, that moneys payable under a policy of assurance or insurance shall be deemed to be situated at the place where the deceased person was domiciled at the time of his death. Moreover, Section 19 of the Revenue Act of 1889 enables moneys under such a policy to be paid out without production of a

U.K. grant where the policy has been effected by a person who dies domiciled outside the U.K.⁷

With regard to U.K. citizens domiciled in Switzerland making an English will after their establishment in Switzerland, it is normal practice to include a phrase whereby the testator directs that his will be construed and take effect in accordance with the law of England.⁸ With regard to U.K. citizens who have drawn up English wills prior to leaving England, it is possible naturally for them after their establishment in Switzerland to add a codicil to the will explicitly directing that it be construed and take effect in accordance with English law. However, this is not absolutely necessary for under the rules of English private international law "a will is to be interpreted in accordance with the law intended by the testator. In the absence of indications to the contrary, this is presumed to be the law of his domicile at the time when the will is made".⁹

It is not unusual for a U.K. citizen domiciled in Switzerland to make two independent wills: one in the Swiss form, handwritten and without witnesses, applying to assets situated in Switzerland, and the other in the English form,¹⁰ with two witnesses and provision for an executor, applying to assets outside Switzerland. Normally, "the personal representative taking out a grant [in England] is required to file an affidavit exhibiting a copy of the foreign will and a note drawing attention to the affidavit is made on the probate".¹¹

With regard to the position of executors, there are notable differences between English law, on the one hand, and Swiss law and other civil law countries, on the other. Whereas under the former the estate of the deceased under a will vests in the executors from the moment of the testator's death, it vests, under Swiss law, in the beneficiaries.

⁷ See Haas v Atlas Assurance Company Limited [1913] 2 KB 209 where a Swiss testamentary executor was held entitled to recover the policy proceeds without taking out probate in the U.K. Cf. Finance Act, 1975, §. 25.

⁸ Such a provision in no way involves any liability to CTT.

⁹ Dicey & Morris, op. cit., Rule 106, p. 604.

¹⁰ It is interesting to note that the Convention Providing a Uniform Law on the Form of an International Will done at Washington, D.C. in October 1973 will enter into force on 9th February, 1978 following the deposit of the fifth Instrument of Accession. The five States which had acceded to the Convention as at 9th August, 1977 were: Canada (for Manitoba and Newfoundland), Libya, Portugal, Niger and Yugoslavia. The Convention provides that an "international will" shall be made in writing in any language, by hand or by any other means, but need not be written by the testator. The latter is required to declare in the presence of two witnesses and of a person authorized to act in connection with "international wills" that the document is his will and that he knows the contents thereof. The testator is required to sign the will in the presence of the witnesses and of the authorized person.

¹¹ Dicey & Morris, op. cit., p. 568.

⁴ See Dicey & Morris, The Conflict of Laws, 9th Edition, 1973, p. 105.

10. Whereas the Government of the United States of America, hereinafter referred to as the "Government,"

Whereas under English law in dealing with pure personal property the executors have several authority so that acts by one executor bind the other,¹² under Swiss law executors can only act jointly. Again executors are not entitled to be remunerated for their services under English law in the absence of express directions in the will.¹³ In contrast, executors under Swiss law are entitled to a reasonable fee.

The question arises of what law governs the administration by executors appointed under an English will of an estate situated in Switzerland of an English person dying domiciled in Switzerland. With regard to the exercise of their functions relating to the administration by the executors, English law will look to Swiss law.

English law having looked to Swiss law to govern the administration by the executors, this reference is said to be acceptable having regard to the following position under Swiss law according to Swiss legal authority.¹⁴ Where a foreign national resident in Switzerland takes advantage of the Federal Law of 1891 and makes a will under his own national law the rights of succession properly so-called are governed by the law of the foreigner's nationality. But the testamentary execution thereof is governed by Swiss law. The functions of the executors are based upon a fundamental contractual relationship under Swiss law and are totally independent of the foreign law governing the succession.

To be distinguished from the administration,¹⁵ however, are the matters of the designation of the beneficiaries and the distribution of the assets and directly related questions,¹⁶ which matters are governed by English law. Within the latter category falls a deed of indemnity which may be validly required by executors under English law from beneficiaries in numerous instances to cover them against liability, for example, in respect of transactions which may constitute breaches of duties of some kind owed by the executors, or in respect of unforeseeable liabilities arising from transactions done in relation to the assets. The fact, therefore, that such a deed is unknown to Swiss law would appear irrelevant.

More difficult problems may arise when a trust is created under the English will of a testator who has died domiciled in Switzerland. Since it is not possible under Swiss law to form a trust as such, a Swiss writer approaches this problem by saying that the wishes of the testator must be construed and given effect to within the possibilities of the Swiss legal framework. This is regarded as being a case of practical adaptation of a legal concept within a foreign legal framework, adaptation being called "transposition".¹⁷ In other words, in order to "transposition" the nearest Swiss legal concept to that of the trust is substituted. The suggestion has been made that the concept of testamentary execution with prolonged administration is the answer.¹⁸

The absence in Swiss law of the trust concept does not facilitate the "transposition" of an existing English trust to Switzerland. Nevertheless, the end result may be achieved by other means.

Assume an English settlement, created by a settlor domiciled in England at the time, the life tenant and adult remaindermen, the class being closed, resident and domiciled outside the United Kingdom and enjoying no special status for exchange control purposes. There is a U.K. resident trust corporation as trustee and the assets are all in U.K. Government securities being tax exempt for non-residents (exempt gilts).

An application can be made to the Court under the Variation of Trusts Act 1958, by the life tenant on behalf of the remaindermen for approval of an arrangement, which would be to the financial benefit of the remaindermen, result in an improvement in the general administration of the trust, and follow the following lines. The existing trustee would appoint as new trustee a trust corporation resident in Jersey or Guernsey and take the necessary steps to effect the appointment and to transfer the trust funds to or otherwise vest them in the new trustee. The latter would then transfer the trust funds to itself as trustee of a new settlement to be constituted under the law of Jersey or Guernsey to hold the trusts of the new settlement freed and discharged from the trusts of the original English settlement. The trusts of the new settlement would be as close as possible to those of the English settlement. The trustee of the new settlement would have power to appoint the life tenant as co-trustee.

There would be no liability to CTT on the determination of the English settlement. Designation of the new Jersey or Guernsey settlement as non-resident for exchange control purposes would be likely to be forthcoming by the relevant authorities in the England Exchange Control.

The facts in this example were essentially those contained in the case of *Re Chamberlain, Blanc v Blanc*¹⁹ (New Law Journal, 21st October, 1976) on 9th May, 1976 the Court approved in effect an application under the Act for a transfer of funds from an English settlement to a Guernsey settlement. In this case the Court accepted that the terms of the new settlement would be as expressed under the law of Guernsey. The Court also made the order on the fact that the beneficiaries concerned had no connection with Guernsey.

¹² There are statutory exceptions, see Williams & Mortimer, Executors, Administrators and Probate, 1970, p. 463.

¹³ There are also other circumstances in which executors are entitled to be remunerated, see Ibid. pp. 27-29.

¹⁴ See Fiche Juridique, Exécution Testamentaire, 870(b).

¹⁵ See Necker, op. cit., p. 260.

¹⁶ See Necker, op. cit., at p. 189 where he states that the legal relations between the executors, on the one hand, and the beneficiaries on the other, are governed by the law of the succession properly so-called, namely, in the present instance, English law.

¹⁷ See Necker, op. cit., p. 167 note 46.

¹⁸ Ibid., at p. 167.

¹⁹ See also Re Windeatt's Will Trusts, Webster v Webster [1969] 1 W.L.R. 692.

The life tenant in the present example, as a resident of Switzerland, would thus become in due course a trustee of a non-resident Guernsey trust.

Suppose in the aforementioned example that only the life tenant were resident and domiciled in Switzerland, that the adult remaindermen were domiciled and resident in the U.K., that the trustees were the life tenant and two resident trustees and that the trust funds were not in exempt gilts but invested in other securities on which gains had been made. The question would arise how far could the Swiss resident proceed in "exporting" the trust. The residence in the U.K. of the remaindermen would prevent an actual transfer of the trust funds outside the U.K. as in the previous example. The question therefore of changing the proper law of the trust would not arise.

Assume it became necessary and desirable from an investment standpoint to make sales of some of the holdings in the trust. Liability for U.K. Capital Gains Tax (CGT) on gains realized upon such disposals of assets would arise. However, no such liability would arise, even on disposals of assets in the U.K., if a majority of the trustees were resident outside the U.K. and the administration of the trust were carried on outside the U.K. Under Section 42 of the Finance Act, 1965 there would be in this event a charge upon the remaindermen as being domiciled and either resident or ordinarily resident in the U.K. on a proportionate part of the gains of which the trustees had they been domiciled and resident in the U.K. would have been chargeable.

There would be benefits both for the life tenant and for the remaindermen were one of the existing U.K. resident trustees to retire and appoint a trustee resident outside the U.K. and preferably in a country where the courts would be able to enforce the rights of the beneficiaries.

An existing trustee under an English settlement has power under Section 36 of the Trustee Act, 1925, to retire and appoint in his place another trustee. The terms of this Section do not preclude the appointment of a non-resident trustee. The exercise of this statutory power can be made without the intervention of the Court in circumstances in which the Court itself would make such an appointment. Where in out of Court appointment is made which would not have been made by the Court itself, such appointment is voidable but not void. However, the appointment would only be voidable at the instance of the beneficiaries.²⁰ If the appointment were shown to the beneficiaries to be to their advantage, they would not attack the appointment.

Although the Board of Inland Revenue would have no standing to apply to upset such an appointment, it would be necessary for all the beneficiaries to provide the retiring trustee with personal covenants against any possible invalidity of the appointment and against any possible CGT liability in respect of future disposals secured by charges on their respective beneficial interests.

The disadvantage of this solution is that there would be CTT liability upon the death of the life tenant unless the trust funds at that date were invested in exempt gilts. However, one cannot have everything in life, and U.K. citizens established in Switzerland should rest content with the thought that it is "the envy of less happier lands".²¹

Dear Mr. Hurst

Many thanks for your letter of 3 August in which you related the sad details of PB's passing. It was very good of you in a time of such personal loss to think of PB's disciples and to share those last precious moments of a really great man's life. I deeply appreciate your thoughtfulness in writing to me and your generosity in permitting me to be privy to PB's last message. I remember well that slight smile you mentioned and can visualise it playing on his features as he passed over. The sense of physical loss is somewhat assuaged by the knowledge that we will meet again in that inner realm that PB opened up for so many of us.

With sincere condolences,
Yours faithfully,
Frank Clarke.

Dear Ken,

It was nice to talk to you and I am glad to hear that you are managing, it didn't even occur to me to consider how much reorganizing and sorting and deciding you have to do - probably at a time when you least feel like doing it. Well, you know I am looking forward to seeing you but when I remember how I felt 2 years ago when I lost my father, I didn't really want to see anybody for a long time, just getting through the responsibilities of each day was enough of a challenge. I imagine that it is the same with you now, it may take quite a while. I look forward to seeing you whenever you think the time is right, and you feel like it and meanwhile Ken, I am keeping you in my thoughts, remembering you in my prayers. Take care.

Love to you,

Gillian

P.S. I just got your letter, I am so glad you sent it out - I am sure that others will feel as I do - reassured and consoled by the way you described the events.

Dr. Paul Brunton died July 27, 1981, in Vevey, Switzerland. Born in London in 1898, he authored thirteen books from "A Search in Secret India" published in 1934 to "The Spiritual Crisis of Man" in 1952. Dr. Brunton is generally recognized as having introduced yoga and meditation to the West, and for presenting their philosophical background in non-technical language.

His mode of writing was to jot down paragraphs as inspiration occurred. Often these were penned on the backs of envelopes or along margins of newspapers as he strolled amid the flower gardens bordering Lac Lemman. They later were typed and classified by subject. Dear Mr Hurst,

Your news telling me that Paul Brunton passed over on July, 27 came as a shock. I had received a short hand-written letter from him dated 2nd July, I could not imagine anyone living in New Jersey who could possibly know my home address. It is about some thirty years since I was last in New Jersey.

Paul Brunton's writing was so much stronger and clear and this gave me hope that we, who love him, would have the joy of knowing he was still with us in this troubled world. But the moment had come and we can only be thankful that we had the privilege of knowing such a wonderful person. I have never actually met him but his influence on me has been profound ever since I first read SEARCH IN SECRET INDIA when my husband, Dr E.C.Dymond and I lived in Borneo in 1938.

I would be so grateful to you if in the event of any account of Paul Brunton's life, or any other relevant material being published, if you would let me know so that I can try to purchase a copy, or copies in this country.

I can well imagine his "kind face" and too almost see that slight smile of "Cheer up! Don't take it so seriously."! But I find that message in no way seems to lessen the pain of separation, both from him, and from Jimmy who passed over last November. Many questions remain. To what extent and for how long does personality and individuality remain? Possibly for as long as may be necessary. . . We shall have to wait and see. . .

There is one other thing that I hope you can do for me. I am arranging to fly to Hong Kong for an indefinite period about the 29th September. The Far East always has been my spiritual home. Can you tell me if there is a Bhagavan Sri Ramana Maharshi centre in Hong Kong., and if so I would be grateful if you can kindly let me have the address?

Thank you indeed for your letter.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Kenneth Hurst,

My husband, Norman and I appreciate very much your kindness in letting us know about P.B.'s passing over, especially the hopeful message in your letter.

We shall, I suppose, perhaps unwittingly at first, search for him again in another life.
In this incarnation it will be impossible to forget him, as you will know.

P.B. helped us a great deal, in silence and in the many notes I was privileged to type for him over the years.

Might it be that you will write about P.B.'s extraordinary life, or perhaps hear of someone else having done so? If so, would you be so kind as to inform us at the appropriate time if possible, please.

I trust you will excuse the use of the address on your envelope, as a means of reaching you.

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Hurst, I was deeply moved, to hear of Dr. Paul Brunton's passing over, and very much appreciate your letter, especially as I know you must have had a great many of them to send. I never had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Brunton, but through his books, I loved him as a very dear friend - I would say my very best friend because he has been my help and inspiration for well over 30 years.

When I was young, I had a re-curring dream - I seemed to be in a library, searching vainly for a certain book. Eventually, I found "The Quest of the Overself," and knew immediately that I had found what I was searching for. That, of course, was the beginning of a much longer search, and with the help of Dr. Brunton's books, I realized just what I was seeking, and often experience what he calls the "Grace of the Overself". I cannot tell you how many times over the years, when I have been utterly bewildered, and with my back up against the wall, so to speak, I have found just what was needed in one of his books. At times, some of the passages in them seemed to glow, or stand out, with an amazing significance for me.

I know that his genius in making plain difficult to understand truths has helped to open up our insight into subtle meanings, so I say, with heartfelt gratitude, "Thanks God for Paul Brunton".

As far as I know, "The Spiritual Crisis of Man" was his last publication. I hesitate to ask, because I know I am only one of many, but if there is anything further, and particularly anything written about him, I would be so grateful if you would let me know. I hesitate to say this too (but I'm going to,

as you are a friend of Paul Bruntow's! But I would very much like to hear from you again, but will quite understand if the pressure of work makes that impossible.
So, please don't feel obliged - it's up to fate, isn't it?

Thanking you once again,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Threl, I was deeply moved to hear of St. Paul Bruntow's passing away, and very much appreciate your letter, especially as I know you now have had a great many of them to write.
I never had the pleasure of meeting St. Bruntow, but through his letter, I took him as a very dear friend - I would say my very first friend because he has been my help and inspiration for well over 30 years.
When I was young, I had a re-arranging dream -
I seemed to be in a library, searching vainly for a certain book. Eventually, I found as you are a friend of Paul Bruntow's! But

Dear Dr. Rose:

Thank you so much for your very interesting letter. It was most kind of you to tell me of the relationship of your mother and yourself to P.B., and the effect he has had upon your work.

Your letter, and other appreciative ones like it, make me glad I had the idea of sending the announcement about his passing to writers of the letters I found in his correspondence files. And there were many of them! I have since arranged for all his effects and files to be sent back here in one container. I'm giving his books to Cornell University as they wish to erect a Paul Brunton Memorial and will set up a library therein.

I sent an obituary to the London Times. I wonder if it has appeared yet?

I found your own activities most interesting. You are indeed a man of parts, "for all seasons". I know the OUP people here and they are excellent publishers. "The Ring" series has received excellent reviews at the Seattle Opera.

Interestingly, P.B. had an American student who was for many years the accompanist at the Zurich Opera House, and is now with the Department of Music at University of Iowa.

Dear Kenneth Hurst,

For P. B.'s death I am very sorry. I have loved him very much. Since 1964 I have known him and visited him twice a year. His books and personal advice has helped me so much. Thank you very much for your kind letters, which consoled me a little. Yes, I would like very much to have an urn. I am grateful to you for being chosen by you to get one of them.

I know Arthur Broekhuysen very well since many years. P. B. gave him my address and we have met us from time to time at Aachen. If you need another person to help in Vevey, I would like to come and help of course.

Do you think you could publish a further book by P. B. one day? All his students are longing for it.

In short I send you some photos from P. B. which I have taken in Montreux and Vevey.

With best wishes to you
yours sincerely

My dear Ken,

Philip and I were so sad to hear of your Father's death. I read something recently which says what I truly believe... "Death was not the characteristic thing about them. It was their response to life, and it is by living newly again that one meets them as they were and keeps in closest touch with them. If you can feel again delight in the thought of them, even if for a long time it is a ^{chilling} torturing delight, your life... will be more full of what is worth having than that of most people."

I believe that he was a most wonderful man whose presence in our world was important. May this be of consolation to you.

We look forward to seeing you soon and I have written to Windsor requesting the Festival programme. With our fondest love to you, dear Friend, Pam.

~~Dear Kenneth~~

WED 19 AUG 81

Thank you for keeping my name on the mailing list of those who may know, in your own eye-witness words, about His last moments.

Your letter is so beautiful! I cannot really find words to express my feelings adequately. The latter are so deep within the Stillness as to lie beyond the reach of the former.

Am I only imagining that He waited for you to come? It was very considerate of Him not to go till then. I'm so glad you made it.

What you say about His message and His smile tends to support my feeling that He has not really gone from our midst. I feel no sense of loss up to now. Will that come later? He is right here with me as He must be with all those whose lives were touched by His Grace as it touched mine.

The world will hardly note His passing. But then only a very few fortunate pilgrims ever got to feel the touch of His loving hand as we did.

I am looking forward to the lifetime when we shall all be together again with Him to continue our spiritual education.

Thank you for your August 12 letter. Your sentiments are appreciated.

It will take at least three or four years for P.B.'s notebooks to be finally classified and edited to be able to produce (hopefully) two or three posthumous books from them.

When they finally are published I plan to send another mailing to all his correspondents announcing the details.

Thank you for your offer of help and for your role as intermediary; I know he had their interest pretty much to heart.

Dear Mr. Brunton,

A couple of months ago I fortuitously came across your book, A Search in Secret India, & I was so taken with it that I scavenged around town for your other books.

You are now no longer a young man, and the words you wrote in your books represent your experiences and your intuitions not a few years prior to these years of your maturity....

Would you condescend kindly to fulfill this wish of a young Lutheran Seminary student who has inclinations toward the mystical? Could you briefly note for me, in response, a summary comment of your 80 plus years of spiritual endeavor. Is there a climax-comment at this point in your life which may diverge from your previous writings? Or what parts of your early works are most representative of your person now? Is there more to say?

Would you take a few moments to write a few words to a 29 year old, younger "Paul Brunton" from the vantage of your 83 years?

With deepest appreciation.

Dear Mr. Hurst:

I felt so fortunate to reach you this morning to express my sympathy, and to talk to you at length about your father. Since I was first led to his teachings 16 years ago, Paul Brunton has been probably the most inspiring and influential person in my life. Hardly a day has passed when I have not read from at least one of his books or from the copious notes which I have made from them. The two great texts, "The Hidden Teaching Beyond Yoga" and "The Wisdom of the Overself" include enough material to take a person years to assimilate, but I have found the study not only compelling reading but fascinating and profitable as well. The concept, for instance, that space is in the mind interested me enormously and led to my first encounter with Bishop Berkeley. And again, the fact that Schopenhauer was influenced by The Upanishads which I had read, led me to my first readings of his.

The profound ideas expounded in "The Spiritual Crises of Man" have helped me add balance to my life and have gradually given me insight into the necessary role played by good and evil particularly - and the answers to my own paraplegia. Paul Brunton had a rare gift and wrote in a direct, uncomplicated manner. In 1975, his teachings culminated in a first-hand experience for me which verified the truth as he taught it. In time, this helped me see life from a more detached and long-range viewpoint. In short, your father's books made my home-bound years more balanced and worthwhile. I feel fortunate, too, that I had reached a point where I could absorb the teachings.

It is marvellous to hear about the Center in Valois, New York. This interests me a great deal and I hope to see it one day soon. The fact that your father left many notebooks filled with writings is exciting to anticipate.

I hesitate to invade your privacy but I do hope that sometime we can meet - perhaps for lunch in Englewood Cliffs. It would be an easy drive from Short Hills. Specifically, I would love to hear what early interests led your father to the mystical life (my own interest stems from teachings from my grandfather), something about your father's life in India, the role he played there in World War II, as well as where he took courses which led to his doctorate. As an ex-publishing man, I would naturally be interested in the books which have sold the best. I am aware, however, that the facts which peak my curiosity should not obscure the more important matter: namely, the works of the man, himself.

My deepest sympathy to you and your family. Paul Brunton was a rare soul and his contribution to the world is assured.

Sincerely,

Bruce C. Kendall

Dear Kenneth,

by now you have certainly received my Aerogramme 13 August. ✓

Thank you so much for your own 11 August, and for the generous offering of some of T.B.' ashes, also thanks to Ena, whom I have known in Verona. Unfortunately it is utterly impossible for me to leave home with my helpless mother by herself. It can't be done. Anyway, if you could send me a little bit of the ashes by Air Mail, I have here a lovely shrine as a present from Taiwan, with a lid upon which there is a mythical figure resembling those guardian animals you see before the Buddhas & Temples. ✓
If it could be done in this way, I would indeed be very grateful for your offering. Dear Kenneth.

In this case, if there would be a little more to offer to his Czech students, one or two of them are passing through Innsbruck every year in summer. They loved him dearly.

If it can't be done as I am suggesting, then never mind. - Mr. Randy has sent me some beautiful clothing, 2 coats and other things, which fit me well and which I am wearing proudly, lovingly and well. A very nice present ^{me} left by T.B. himself. ✓

Dear Friend,

Received with profound grief your communication advising the sad demise of our Dr. Paul Brunton which came so suddenly that it fills our heart with emptiness difficult to compensate in near future.

However, his true realisation of self made him smile and utter the last parting word, "cheer up, don't take it so seriously".

The information of his sudden demise has been passed on to Dr. (Mrs.) Purnima Sircar at Salt Lake and others interested and known to P.B.

May I take this opportunity to request you, if we could follow up with the link and association with the line of thinking followed by our P.B. to know the self and to be absorbed in it with ultimate Bliss.

Please reply.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear M. Chessex:

I enclose a leaflet on English Worlds and Trust in Switzerland which appears to indicate clearly (on page 38) that a foreign national resident in Switzerland can have his rights of succession governed by his own country's law.

I would appreciate your checking whether this is indeed so, because in that case, as my father's will specified British Law of Succession, there would seem to be no question of Swiss Law applying as we discussed during my visit last month?

Perhaps this fact might then help the judge expedite probate of the will.

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Friend,

I am deeply shocked to be told of the passing away of dear and respected Dr. Paul Brunton. For me, his passing away only indicates that he has been absorbed into Arunachala-Ramana, the Master whom he adored in his heart of hearts. Your description of Dr. Paul Brunton's last moments are not only vivid but also make it explicit and confirm the greatness of Dr. Brunton.

I would be deeply grateful to you if you can kindly send me matter for publication in our October '81 issue of 'The Mountain Path' on Dr. Brunton under the column of 'Obituary', together with a bust photograph of Dr. Brunton.

In fact, I will be deeply grateful to you if you will please send us any of/all of Dr. Brunton's writings on Sri Maharshi. We have founded, with the help of our western and eastern friends, a Research Library and are preserving in it the precious manuscripts of old devotees of Sri Bhagavan. Any manuscript from Dr. Brunton to be sent by you to this Research Library will definitely enhance its worth and reputation. Kindly confirm.

With our good wishes,

Ever yours in Sri Bhagavan,

Dear Friend,

I am deeply shocked to be told of the passing away of

I would be deeply grateful to you if you can kindly send

Dear Ms. Dymond:

Thank you for your August 15 letter. I appreciate your sentiments.

As his literary executor, I don't think he would appreciate a biography being published, although many people seem to want one. However I have several notebooks of his and am assembling a team of his younger students to sort and compile and we will see if perhaps we could come out with one or two posthumous books in a few years time.

Yes, I agree with the answer to your question in your fourth paragraph.

I don't think there is a Ramana center in Hong Kong, or I certainly would have known of it. In fact, I was there only last February.

This is a typical period for all his students, but the work will continue...

Dear Irene:

I have read and reread your August 12 letter several times. It is very deep. Thank you for sharing your thoughts with me.

If you are ^{NOT} in a great hurry for them, I will bring the packet of your letters personally to India next February and have our South India manager deliver the packet to you. This will avoid any possibility of the package being opened by postal or customs officials. So, unless I hear from you otherwise, this is the procedure I shall follow.

Regarding the ashes, did you receive my August 12 letter? In this I offered to give you part of the ashes and to bring them with me to India for personal delivery. Mrs. King has designed a beautiful urn, and we are presently having a small number custom made.

I arranged for all P.B.'s effects to be shipped here, and they are now on the high seas. I return to Vevey next month to arrange completion of his affairs.

As his literary executor, I then have to follow his instructions to examine his voluminous notebooks and decide what materials should be published posthumously. I am already lining up a team of his students, qualified for this work, to help me on this project.

Thank you very much for your offer to help during our week in Vevey, but I think the two of us can attend to the necessary correspondence which will have accumulated. And there are also a couple of local students.

All the remainder of P.B.'s belongings have been shipped back here, and I will sort them out after my return in mid-October.

I intend to donate the books and wall hangings to the Cornell group who want to build a memorial center to P.B.

Thank you for your two letters.

I explained the situation to Ena. She understands that you cannot leave your mother. But she says she will find a way to get the urn to you, perhaps even bring it herself to Innsbruck. The urn has an opening so you may ~~remove~~ remove some of the ashes to give to his other students who visit Innsbruck. Ena has designed a beautiful urn. It is lovely.

I am so glad that the clothing reached you safely, and that you like Ken. It was P.B.'s wish.

We all miss him badly — But yet many of us feel the uplift of his presence every day.

Dear Kenneth,

His body is gone but his presence will ever be with me.

I have not seen P.B. in many years yet he was ever close to me. I regret not ever being able to visit him and this saddens me but I suppose that was the way it was supposed to be.

I never thought that I would ever live in Hallettsville and never by any stretch of the imagination think that I would write a weekly newspaper column! Some of the columns and drawings astound even myself and I feel that I had help in writing.

The entire year of 1980 I kept a night and day vigil at my Mother's bedside, in and out of various hospitals.
She will be 94 years old on Monday, August 31, and has a bright and clear mind but the body is wearing out, although she is still fairly active for her years.

I am sure that it was no illusion that P. B. was smiling and sent you a note as cheer as he peacefully took his leave.

He left an indelible stamp on my life - forever!

Please write whenever you have the time or inclination. I will be pleased to hear from you, if there is anything that I can help with do not hesitate in telling me.

With Thoughts of Love and Peace,
Clara Wagner

P.S. Was the body cremated or buried? When and where?

I am sure that it was no accident that I was meeting you and you a note up there in the fireplace that I have.
He left an envelope containing
my life - forever!
Please write and tell me your the time or indication. I will be pleased to hear from you, if there is anything that I can help with do not hesitate in telling me.

With affectionate regards,

With deep gratitude I received the sad news about our dear P.B. death; a very hearty thank you.

A friend of P.B. Mrs. C. Pierpoint, resident in Clarens, had already informed me of his sudden death, but she did not mention any details as to how he died. I am truly very grateful to you, dear Mr. Hurst. I presume that you have known P.B. more intimately for some time.

In 1977 P.B. wrote to me from the States to say that he would meet me in Switzerland. I was due for my home-leave after seven years and on the last possible day before my departure to South Africa we met in Montreaux. Next year I shall be due to visit Europe again and all along I hoped to meet P.B. once more.

Yes, the inner P.B. will live on in our hearts. His books will always be my dear companions.

Once more a very hearty thank you for the trouble to let me know about the passing over of our dear P.B.

May God bless and reward you.

Dear Ken-

Hasten to send this off to you between trips to Michigan and Minnesota. So sorry we didn't have the opportunity to speak recently as I wanted to extend my sympathy to you on the death of your father.

My first experience with Paul Bunton was in Cornwall, 1977. I was spending the summer in Polzeath teaching camp. One rainy day off, I went to Camelford with a friend to visit her aunt. In the study of her small library was a collection of six of your father's writings. That summer I read The Secret Path and A Message From Arumachab - didn't understand all, but enough to further pique my interest in your father's philosophy.

I know you're aware of how important these teachings were to the acceptance of my own father's crisis (he recently told me you had spoken to him) as when all else seemed lost your father's writings provided my Dad with both meaning and purpose. And for this, the Haskell family is grateful beyond words.

Best regards to you, Ken,

Peter Haskell

Dear Friend,

Peace and Good-will. I thank you very much for your kindness in writing me about the passing over of Paul Bruntton. We know that his presence is always near us. I could feel it from here in the middle of Brazil.

I hope to get in contact with you someday, as I know we have a point in common: our great love for him.

I know Paul Bruntton was writing his last book. Is it going to be published? Would you have something new you could send me? I would appreciate it very much. If there is something from here you would like to have, please let me know.

I must thank you again for your kindness and I'm sure we will become great friends. Indeed, in a certain way, we already are. Thank you.

Dear Sir,

I am enclosing an obituary for favour of publication in your newspaper. Although Dr. Brunton passed away on July 27, we received the news of his sad demise only yesterday. Dr. Brunton, a journalist, became a disciple of Ramana Maharshi and propagated Indian philosophy throughout the world.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr Thurston Hurst

It is with deep regret that I learn of Dr Brunton's passing. Taken in the spirit of Advaita (non-duality) we shall not regard his physical end as a loss because 'he' is absorbed into the Plenary Experience which is the Self (Brahman-Atman).

He rendered great service to spiritual seekers and also made known to the West the wisdom of the East particularly that of India and her Sages. As soon as I got this information I sent word to His Holiness the Senior Sankaracarya of Kanchi whom Dr Brunton has written about so beautifully in his book, a description which I have quoted repeatedly.

By those of us who appreciated him he will be remembered with profound respect.

Yours sincerely

Dear Kenneth Hurst,

Thank you very much for your kind letter. There are the photos. I hope this letter will arrive before your departure to Europe.

Every day my thoughts and my remembrance is with P. B. I received his last letter, written by his own hand, in the first week of July with advice for meditation. These are so precious for me.

Thank you very much for taking trouble about us.

My best wishes to you,

Dear Mr. Weiser:

Thank you very much for the offer you made in our telephone conversation last week to forward this letter to a close student of Paul Brunton or his son.

I came across Mr. Brunton's writings for the first time this Summer. I started with A Search in Secret India, went on to Egypt, then read The Quest Of The Overself and am currently reading The Spiritual Crisis of Man.

Paul Brunton's works are for me an oasis after a long walk through the spiritual desert. I have found the Quest book extremely helpful as a kind of text of spiritual life and although I have been doing the main practices described in it for only two months I can feel their effects.

Ideally I had wished to have the darshan of Mr. Brunton, but as I found out when I telephoned, this was not to be. There is, I am certain a good and valid reason why this event did not occur.

I've enclosed a description of my spiritual odd-y-ssey with this letter. You are welcome to read it if you like. I would very much like to make contact with any close students of Mr. Brunton's who could help me through personal contact implement the teachings in his books. I would also be very interested in purchasing any of the manuscripts which contain his writings subsequent to his last published works. His writings contain much valuable guidance for me.

Much success to you and your firm in publishing the works of Mr. Brunton and other true revealers of the hidden LIGHT.

Sincerely,

To a Continuer of Mr. Brunton's Divine Work:

In a recent telephone conversation, Don Weiser kindly agreed to forward this letter to the appropriate person. You are he.

This Summer I read several books of Mr. Brunton. I was very inspired by them. They also gave me a lot of very practical and valuable techniques, which although I have studied Yoga for many years, were very Right for me.

I determined to find out if Mr. Brunton was still in the physical body. I was very disappointed (grieved) to find out he had passed away so recently. Yet I accept there is a reason for my "timing."

I had wanted to receive Paul Brunton's darshan and to learn from him what he would not teach in books (so far as I am ready). If appropriate, I make this same request of you. I've included a short "biography" of my spiritual life thus far so you will understand me better. If you can provide more Light on the path please do write or phone.

Odd-y-ssey

I started practicing hatha yoga asanas and became a Vegetarian in 1968. We were living in Chadron, Nebraska ("The Beef State") where I was teaching American literature at a small college. While in Chadron, I saw a Village Voice advertisement for the records of a Swami Radha of Kootenay Bay, British Columbia. We sent for the records on "Mantras" and "Guided Relaxation," and found them very valuable.

My wife Carla and I went to visit the Ashram in 1970. Our intention was to spend a few weeks of the Summer and then go on to a TM Teacher Training Course. We were persuaded by Swami Radha not to go and ended staying at the Ashram a little over 4 years.

At the Ashram, the main things I learned how to do was work. I coordinated the educational program, did the bookkeeping, managed the bookstore, taught in the yoga-teacher training course. The main theme of the period was ceaseless (as opposed to selfless) service. We left in 1974 with me at least seeing Swami Radha as an igneus fatui, a false light posing as "guru" to those willing to cede her that power.

Odd-y-assy

I started practicing hatha yoga asanas and became a vegetarian in 1962. We were living in Chardon, Nebraska (The Red State) where I was teaching American literature at a small college. While in Chardon, I saw a Village Voice advertisement for the records of a Swami Radha of Kootenay Bay, British Columbia. We sent for the records on "Hathas" and "Guided Relaxation," and found them very valuable.

My wife and I went to visit the Ashram in 1975. Our intention was to spend a few weeks of the summer and then go on to a TM Teacher Training Course. We were persuaded by Swami Radha not to go and ended staying at the Ashram a little over a year.

At the Ashram, the main thing I learned how to do was work. I coordinated the educational program, did the bookkeeping, managed the bookstore, taught in the yoga-teacher training course. The main theme of the period was conscious (as opposed to selfless) service. We left in 1977 with me at least seeing Swami Radha as an ignorant fool, a false front posing as "guru" to those willing to take her that power.

We left the Ashram with $1,250 approximately half of which was in silver coins which would hold their value in time of economic crisis. We went to Cranbrook, a town of about 10,000 150 miles from the Ashram. There I worked briefly for a Prefab Home manufacturer as a field accountant. We moved when my wife was hired by Selkirk College as a counsellor and after several months of searching I ended up managing a building supply firm in Castlegar, B.C.

During this period of time I felt quite spiritually adrift. Although I intellectually knew better, ~~I tended to distrust Yoga and yogis.~~ A lady named Ellafern Pindexter (MataAtmananda) who has an Ashram in Thunder Bay, Ontario) visited with us in Castlegar and left a copy of Joel Goldsmith's the Mystical I in 1975. For several years Joel was my main source of spiritual nourishment. If you have not read his writings, he and Paul Brunton are on a very similiar band of consciousness, although Joel's works seem as if they had prepared me for Paul's writings.

For the past several years I've tuaght in the business department at Mount Royal College in Calgary, an oil-head-office city of about 600,000 in Western Canada. Recently I became chairman of the department. In the midst of a hectic schedule I am trying to ~~deny~~ spiritual practice and remember my true purposes.

That's my story. I would appreciate any help in any form you can give.

May the Divine Bless You and Keep You and Cause His Countenqce To Shine Upon You and Illuminate You from Within.

Sincerely,

Melvin Pasternak

Dear Mr. Lohman:

Your August 20 letter to Dr. Paul Brunton has found its way to me. I regret to inform you that he passed over six weeks ago.

However, as one close to him, I can say that his later works represent his personal later development. I refer specifically to "The Hidden Teaching Beyond Yoga" and "The Wisdom of the Overself".

While not neglecting the mystical path of his earlier years, his researches led him into the philosophical content beyond them.

Dr. Brunton had found peace within himself. He and his writings played a large part in many people's lives around the world.

May I wish you every success with your own Quest.

September 14, 1981

Dear Kenneth:

Your touching letter describing the passing over of your beloved father on July 27th was read with immeasurable sadness upon my return to Worcester on August 12th. I was in Palo Alto celebrating my father's 80th birthday on July 26th at the time of PB's transition. When my father had a thyroidectomy on May 1st, he told me to bring his two notebooks of translations on Chou Tun-Yi, the 11th century sage much admired by PB. My father undertook these translations in 1973 after PB showed me his tankas of this great Neo-Confucian sage. I know that my father's absorption of these philosophical works rejuvenated his health and refreshed his spirit. I had hoped to show PB my father's completed translations which he expressed much interest, and I am saddened it will not come to pass.

I was invited to the US-Japan "Protein Structure" Symposium at Cornell University (Aug. 17-21). It was my first return to Ithaca since April 1973, so I had a chance to visit Anthony in Valois after the scientific meetings. Oh how Wisdom's Goldenrod has grown and blossomed! I stayed there until August 30th drinking nectars of wisdom from the philosophical discussions, the beautiful library, and reading PB's notebooks. PB has been and is most dear to me ever since Anthony introduced me to his books in 1968. I went to Europe four times, and spent my last days there with PB on all four occasions. How miraculous indeed! Those 14 days in his presence are deeply etched in my soul and are the most joyful moments of my life. After our first meeting in Montreux (August 1972), PB inspired me so much that I began to apply his philosophical principles more diligently to my scientific research. My laboratory at Brandeis University's Biochemistry Department became my garden of contemplation. My scientific studies bore fruits, and my papers on "Protein Conformational Prediction" (1974) achieved international acclaim as one of the most cited biochemistry papers of the last decade. Thus, each time I was invited to Europe for biochemical conferences (1976, 1978-79), PB welcomed me to see him. I was always nourished by his generous kindness, compassionate wisdom, and peaceful grace. PB was indeed my spiritual father and Teacher.

The Chinese sage Mencius said: "One who is virtuous and commands our liking is called a good man. He who is sincere with himself is called a true man. He whose goodness is full is called a beautiful man. He whose perfect goodness is brilliantly displayed is called a great man. When this great man exercises a transforming influence, he is called a sage. When the sage is beyond our knowledge, he is called a man of the spirit." PB was indeed a sage of the spirit. After having met PB, I was moved to tears for I knew that sages like Buddha and Christ have walked on this earth. Every moment with PB has been a learning experience for my soul. Oh, how he has nourished my body, clarified my mind, purified my heart, and illuminated my soul. I am forever thankful to PB for his inspiration which enabled me to do beautiful work in science and to blossom in poetic verse. I'm enclosing some of my poems inspired by my meetings with PB for your reading pleasure. In his Wisdom of the Overself, PB dedicated the book fraternally to "those sincere pioneers of a nobler epoch whose deep need and silent thoughts called forth this work." In the silence of my soul, I have promised PB that I will dedicate my life to keep my mind in purity and my heart in sincerity so that I may carry on the sacred work which he has so nobly advanced.

Sincerely yours in Peace,

Peter Y Chou

Dear Kenneth

Your charming letter describing the session over at your beloved labeled on July 25th was read with considerable interest when we returned to Princeton on August 1st. I was in fact the celebration on Father's day birthday on July 25th at the time of 1961 celebration. When my father had a birthday on May 25th, he told me to bring his two most books of translations on June 25th. The first volume was very small no 25. The second volume these translations in 1973 when he showed me the books of this great non-Confucian sage. I know that as Father's dedication of these philosophical works represented his spirit and the transmission of spirit. I had hoped to show to you Father's completed translations which he expressed much interest, and I am confident it will not come to pass.

I was invited to the 42-Japan Pacific Symposium, University of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, 1961. It was my first return to Japan since April 1955, so I had a chance to visit Japan in 1961 after the second visit. On the 25th of October, 1961, I had a chance to meet and discuss these two volumes with Father. I was very happy to see him from the photographical discussions, the beautiful history, and reading of his notebook.
He has been and is still here to me since Father introduced me to his books in 1955. I went to Japan four times, and spent my last days there with 65 on all four occasions. How wonderful indeed! These 14 days in the presence of Father, which I will not soon forget (July 1961). After our first meeting in Montreal (August 1977), 65 indicated to me much that I began to study his philosophical principles more effectively in my scientific research. His philosophy as Father's philosophy's philosophical concepts became an action of contemplation.
My scientific studies were limited, and my nature as Father's philosophical philosophy (1977) achieved international status as one of the most philosophical aspects of the last decade. Now, each time I was invited to Europe for philosophical conferences (1977, 1978-79), 65 welcomed me to see him. I was always welcomed by his generous kindness, conversations with me, and wonderful topics. 65 was invited by Father and Father.

The Chinese sage Mencius said: "One who is virtuous and commands the living is called a good man. He who is sincere with himself is called a true man. He whose goodness is full is called a beautiful man. He whose perfect goodness is brilliant is called a great man. When this great man exercises a transforming influence, he is called a sage.
Then the sage is beyond our knowledge, he is called a sage of the spirit." 65 was indeed a sage of the spirit. After having met 65, I was moved to write for I have that same like "Jude and Christ have walked on this earth. Every moment with 65 has been a learning experience for my soul.
65 has not only nourished my body, clarified my mind, purified my heart, and illuminated my soul. I am forever thankful to 65 for his liberation which enabled me to be beautiful with in science and to discuss in particular. I'm confident some of my poems inspired by my sessions with 65 for your reading pleasure. In his book of the spirit, 65 dedicated the book translation to those sincere seekers of a higher good world.
They need and expect thoughts called forth this work. In the spirit of my soul, I have indicated 65 that I will dedicate my life to keep my mind in purity and my heart in sincerity so that I can carry on the sacred work which he has so nobly advanced.

Sincerely yours in peace,

Yours truly,

Dearest Kenneth -

Mike and Jane told me of P.B.'s passing. It was not without awe for me, since I had begun re-reading "The Quest for The Other-Self" around the first week in August and had decided to re-connect to the practice of meditating regularly — a practice I had lost contact with and now am into again.

A friend sent me a quote from Tagore once which says:

Death is not turning off the Light — it is shutting The Lamp because The Dawn has come.

one feels the loss greatly on a human, feeling level because there are so few individuals like P.B. on this Earth. I know you'll miss his physical presence but I also know you will be supported by the love and caring that is directed to you.

Love, Gilda

Dear Mr. Hurst,

Many thanks for your letter of 3 September in which you mention your planned visit to Sydney next February. It would be a great pleasure to meet you when you are in Australia then, and I will contact the Australian branch of your company closer to February in case there are changes to your itinerary.

PB mentioned you to me when I last saw him in 1979 and told me several anecdotes concerning his early life in London. He was an eyewitness to the famous siege of Sidney Street when a group of Russian anarchists held several thousand British policemen at bay for more than eight hours. I was researching a book on these Russians and mentioned it in passing to PB when we were together in Venice.

Dear Mr. Howard

Many thanks for your letter of 3 September in which you mention your planned visit to Sydney next February. It would be a great pleasure to meet you when you are in Australia then and I will contact the Australian branch of your company closer to February or so as there are changes to your itinerary.

As mentioned you do me when I last saw him in 1979 and told me several anecdotes concerning his early life in London. He was an experienced as the famous sage of history told when a group of his own associates held several thousand British pounds at bay for over three eight hours. I was researching a book on these Russians and mentioned it in passing to 98 when we were together in 1979.

Imagine my surprise when - with that louchy dry smile of his - he told me all about it. Evidently he and several of his school friends ragged school & followed the sound of the gunfire to Sidney Street where they witnessed the entire episode. I was also privileged to hear something of his childhood spiritual experiences and they were quite remarkable.

His impact on my own life was made through his writings initially which I first encountered when I was 12 years old. As an adult I was extraordinarily fortunate to be invited by him to a personal relationship which began in 1969/70 and was renewed again in 1979. It is impossible to estimate the degree of his influence in my own life except to say that he is the single most important formative influence of which I am aware.

To meet the son of PB would indeed be a great privilege.

Yours sincerely,
Frank Clarke.

Dear Ken Hurst,

I thank you for your kind letter of 31-8-81.

I deem it a pleasure & privilege to have met you, as the son of Paul Brunton, who has immortalised himself by interpreting & putting across effectively to the world, the philosophy of Ramana Maharshi, the great sage of India. I was happy to see in you sparks of that brilliance (for which your great father was renowned) as the Master of Ceremonies at the August 3 Banquet.

It is my regret that I could not spend more time with you, at my first meeting.
I look forward to meet you in America,

DEAR P.B., BELOVED FRIEND AND TEACHER,

HAVING HAD NO RESPONSE WHATEVER TO MY TWO LETTERS ADDRESSED TO YOU, FROM MADRAS AND KARACHI, AT 107 AVE. DES ALPES, CH-1814, LA TOUR DE PEILZ, SWITZERLAND, AN ADDRESS WHICH WAS GIVEN TO ME AT THE SRI RAMANA MAHARISHI ASHRAM AT ARUNACHALA, I AM TRYING YET AGAIN TO GET IN TOUCH WITH YOU THROUGH ONE OF YOUR PUBLISHERS, WHOM I HAVE ASKED TO FORWARD THIS LETTER ON TO YOU.

BELIEVING YOU TO BE DEAD ALL THESE YEARS, ONLY TO FIND THAT YOU ARE STILL WITH US, HAS BEEN LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE, EMOTIONALLY AND SPIRITUALLY; A TRUE MIRACLE OF THE OVERSELF'S GRACE WHICH HAS PROFOUNDLY CHANGED ME. AS RELATED TO YOU IN MY EARLIER LETTERS, WHICH YOU MAY NOT HAVE RECEIVED, I WAS LIED TO SOME 13 YEARS AGO, HAVING BEEN TOLD ON WHAT SEEMED TO BE UNIMPEACHABLE AUTHORITY THAT YOU HAD PASSED ON IN 1967 OR 1968. IT WAS ONLY WHEN MY WIFE AND I WENT ON OUR FIRST PILGRIMAGE TO ARUNACHALA THAT WE LEARNED THE TRUTH.

I WISHED TO COME TO SEE YOU, AND STILL DO, BUT HAVE BEEN DETERRED TILL NOW BY NOT KNOWING FOR CERTAIN EXACTLY WHERE YOU ARE, AS WELL AS BY THE NEED TO SOLICIT YOUR PERMISSION, SINCE YOU MAY NOT BE WELL ENOUGH OR OTHERWISE MAY NOT WISH TO RECEIVE VISITORS.

PLEASE WRITE TO LET ME KNOW, AT LEAST, IF YOU HAVE OR HAVE NOT RECEIVED THIS OR MY

OTHER LETTERS. I SHALL CERTAINLY UNDERSTAND IF YOU DO NOT WISH TO RECEIVE ANYONE, AND WOULD NEVER DREAM OF TRYING TO FORCE MYSELF ON YOU IN ANY WAY. BUT IT WOULD DO MY HEART GOOD TO HAVE DIRECT NEWS OF YOU, IF ONLY A LINE OR TWO. WE HAVE ALWAYS BEEN ONE; YOU ARE THE CENTRE AROUND WHICH MY LIFE AND PHILOSOPHY HAVE BEEN BUILT. I DO NOT HAVE TO SEE YOU WITH MY PHYSICAL EYES TO CARRY YOU FOREVER IN MY HEART OF HEARTS.

I ASK ONLY FOR YOUR BLESSING, BUT WILL FLY AT ONCE TO YOUR SIDE IF ONLY YOU WILL ALLOW ME TO COME. IF NOT, AT LEAST LET ME KNOW IF YOU HAVE NEED OF ANYTHING. GOD HAS BEEN GOOD TO ME IN THE MATERIAL SENSE, HOWEVER TRANSIENT MY LUCK MAY PROVE TO BE. IF YOU NEED ANY HELP, EVERYTHING I HAVE IS YOURS.

Dear Mr. Thurston,

Thank you very much for your letter; I really appreciate your taking the time to write to me.

I am puzzled about one thing - I thought that Dr. Brunton had retired in Buckinghamshire, in England - apparently, he passed away in America (I'm behind the times!).

That is just in passing - there are several questions I'd like to ask you, but will refrain, as I don't want you to feel obliged to answer.

I can understand his students' desire to know more about him, and perhaps something of his personal struggles (about which, he was very reticent in his books) because, as I know we all have to go through it alone, it is a comfort sometimes (and an inspiration) to know how those who are further advanced in the spiritual life cope with the struggles and darkneses. So, although I knew that Paul Brunton would not have wanted a biography published, I can understand the "hunger" for more of him (or about him), so will look forward to reading any posthumous books you may publish in the future.

I also understand what Paul Brunton meant when he said, "you must find the real P.B. within yourselves". For, ultimately, we are all One, and all our travail is to realize this truth. "One in all; all in One".

I hope that you enjoy a successful visit to Sydney next March. It would be most enjoyable to have a chat with you on the 'phone, but I know how quickly a week goes by, so I won't be disappointed if you don't find the time to ring - I will quite understand.

Dear Mr. Hurst,

Thank you for your letter of August 25. I am, as surely the many people who love Paul Brunton are, disappointed that a biography of his life is not contemplated at the present time. It is more than likely that by the time any posthumous books come out that I, myself, may know the answers to perplexing questions. At least I hope so.

Well, this is the day that I should have been airborne to Hong Kong. But my plans for further travel, at least for the time being, had to be cancelled owing to circumstances over which I had no control.

I have thought a lot about the last sentence in your letter: "This is a difficult period for all his students, but the work will continue. . ." I find myself in the confusing situation of knowing so little about the person, who, as I have said, has so great an influence in my life, in that although his philosophy sank deeply into my mind, I have never known where or what he was doing apart from writing his books. Are his lectures and teachings those of the various paths of Yoga, or the teachings of Ramana?

The reason for my ignorance about his life lies in the fact that our medical life was spent in many countries, often in wild places among primitive peoples.

In April I received a communication from Switzerland - I had sent a letter to Paul Brunton c/o his publishers in London - on one side was the printed notice informing me of his enforced retirement owing to advanced age. On the other I read:

Thank you, dear Mrs Dymond, for sending me THREADS OF CIRCUMSTANCE. I read it with interest, as also your letter about Calcutta, and noted its sincerity. To be a follower of the Way, with all that it requires from us, gives a great meaning and inner adventure to life.

Regrettably, this letter had to be written for me because of my operation and subsequent illnesses, but I have, however, signed my name to this myself. I have found a measure of peace of Mind, and I wish you the same.

Toward Highest Good
Paul Brunton

The signature is very weak, that of a frail man.

-continued-

I mentioned in my last letter to you that his writing had grown much stronger; his second letter reads:

July 2, 1981

Dear Mrs Dymond,

This is a short note of thanks for the flowers which you sent me. My illness is a bit of a long drawnout affair, but it is not yet too serious. At present I feel better, but it varies. Thank you for your kind thoughts. Coming from you, they were welcome indeed.

In Peace
Paul Brunton

You mention that you are his literary executor. This being so I am wondering what happens to his correspondence? Are they shipped over to you? If this is so maybe you will be able to tell me if my book THREADS OF CIRCUMSTANCE and my letters to Paul Brunton are among them? In the event that you do find them you may decide to read THREADS. As the book mainly is about Jimmy's first hospital in Foochow, I will enclose a copy of his obituary as it may serve to outline some of our wanderings around the world. If you do come across my letter to Paul Brunton describing my experience of his telepathic contact with me when we were staying at the Grand Hotel, Calcutta, I hope that it will amuse you, as I had hoped it might have amused Paul Brunton.

I have no idea what he really looked like - I have to imagine that "kind face". Is there a possibility of my obtaining a photograph of him? I would so appreciate having it near my wonderful photo of Ramana.

Thank you for your information about a Ramana centre in Hong Kong. Our last visit to the Colony was in 1967. It was impossible at that time for me to go into China. But I had hoped to do so this time and the greater hope of going to Foochow, in order to write a book on present day China. Instead I will have to take up my unfinished work, a book on South Africa - the period when we went to the wilds of Pondoland, 1933.

I do so hope you will not mind my writing to you again. But it is so wonderful to be in touch with a person who knew Paul Brunton so well.

With warmest good wishes.

Sincerely,

Ruby Dymond

Cher Kenneth,

La soeur de Diana et son mari Bentley, me disent qu'ils vous ont vu à Francfort et que vous avez l'air d'aller très bien malgré le fait que vous avez pris un petit peu de poids....

J'ai beaucoup de choses à vous dire concernant P.B. mais il faut attendre qu'on puisse se rencontrer.

Il y a à peu près vingt ans, P.B. avait fait la prédiction qu'il mourrait en 1981 ou 1982, cette prédiction s'est avérée exacte.

Il parait aussi que le Maharajah de Mysore des Indes lui a légué un million de Livres Sterling, est ce que c'est vrai ? et que Madame Beach (Plage comme vous le disiez) lui a laissé quelque chose dans son testament ???

Un jour je vous écrirai sur la vision extraordinaire de P.B. Nous avons appelé cette vision "la vision de Althodas" pour cacher le vrai nom et je me rappelle la façon dont il a eu cette vision :

"ALTHODAS" was seen in a vision looking much older that he is now, his futures had remarkably changed and he was looking like a cabalist. His lower nature was under control and he received messages. He had developped occult powers and when he looked at a person he saw, at once, the inner state of that person, his character, his spiritual development and his faults. His reputation as a seer was becoming known and people used to come to him for advices"

Now, Kenneth who do you think this was ????
You ? Myron ? Bernard, Me, Jack ? or ?????

J'ai beaucoup de choses à vous dire concernant
P.B. mais il faut attendre qu'on puisse se rencontrer.

Il y a à peu près vingt ans, P.B. avait fait la prédiction qu'il mourrait en 1981 ou 1982, cette prédiction s'est avérée exacte.

Il paraît aussi que le Maharajah de Mysore des Indes lui a légué un million de livres Sterling, est ce que c'est vrai ? et que Madame Beach (Plage comme vous le disiez) lui a laissé quelque chose dans son testament ???

Un jour je vous écrirai sur la vision extraordinaire de P.B. Nous avons appelé cette vision "la vision de Althodas" pour cacher le vrai nom et je me rappelle la façon dont il a eu cette vision :

"ALTHODAS" was seen in a vision looking much older that he is now, his features had remarkably changed and he was looking like a capitalist. His lower nature was under control and he received messages. He had developed occult powers and when he looked at a person he saw, at once, the inner state of that person, his character, his spiritual development and his faults.
His reputation as a seer was becoming known and people used to come to him for advice"

Now, Kenneth who do you think this was ???
You ? Myron ? Bernard, Me, Jack ? or ????

P.B. told to me who it was but I am curious to have your opinion.

I was thinking, Kenneth, that you should change

To know the faded rose will bloom again is to know Eternity."

Dear Kenneth,

Thank you for your moving account of PB's last moments.
The earth is not the same without him, but the ideal he held up will live forever in the hearts of those who had the privilege of coming into personal contact with him.
Words cannot express what knowing him has meant and still means to me.

Please let me know if his friends in Sweden can contribute in any way to honour his memory.

Thank you again for your kindness to write. May grace help you through the sorrow.

Dear Peter:

What a lovely thought to put together those poems inspired by your meetings with P.B. It is a beautiful memento and I will treasure it. Thank you so much.

I knew of you of course, and am glad to know more about your work.

Letters from all over the world are testifying to the role P.B. and his books played in the lives of so many people. It is quite overwhelming.

I expect to see Anthony soon. As you may know, we hope to publish some of P.B.'s notebooks.

It was good to hear from you, Peter. Many thanks again for the poems. I wish you peace and joy.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Rose:

Thank you for your September 15 letter.

By coincidence we both contacted the London Times! I've been in London briefly two times during the past six weeks. I also spoke to the new head of Rider & Co.

You are quite right that Dr. Brunton avoided personal publicity. He told me we must find the real P.B. within ourselves. By the same token he also instructed me that he did not wish any biography to be written.

When I next visit London, probably in February, I will make every effort to reach you by telephone so we can at least have a brief chat.

Please convey my kindest regards to your mother--and accept them yourself.

Dear Mrs. Dymond:

Thank you for your letter of October 10 and for telling me of P.B.'s letters to you.

Yes, his earlier books interpreted the teachings of Ramana for the western reader. They would fit into the category of Raja Yoga. But his later two books went far beyond into the realm of ancient Indian philosophy. In other words, the earlier works were written from the mystical viewpoint, and the latter from the more scholarly.

Yes, I have all his files and correspondence in several steamer trunks, and am still going through them. I shall look forward to finding and reading THREADS.

I know the Grand Hotel on Chowringhee very well and stayed there for a month some twenty years ago.

Some photographs are being sorted, and I will send you one soon separately.

I can see that you and your husband led adventuresome lives. By coincidence I purchased in Switzerland last month a Chinese traditional bamboo painting on silk from the artist, Li Ai Vee from Shanghai. Your husband obviously was a man for all seasons.

14th December, 1981

Dear Mr. Hurst,

A few days ago I was up on the mountain, ruminating in my usual way, when I heard myself murmuring: "Well, the only thing I want and need for Christmas is a letter from Kenneth Hurst." And lo, your letter of 3 December arrived the day after! Perhaps across the miles you may have felt the joy that came to me - the really first uplifting of the heart since Jimmy went. Thank you indeed.

I am glad that Paul Brunton's files and correspondence are with you. It will surely take a long time to go through all those trunks. There seem to be further threads forming in my life, to what purpose I have no idea. I would like to feel able to carry on with the Dymond tradition - to face and accept any challenge that may come my way.

I am deeply grateful to you for your intention of sending me a photograph of P.B. And with reference to that I must tell you that a friend of ours; a remarkable man, named, Gerd Ledermann; he's a Buddhist and has been Warden here for two years to the Vietnamese refugees. He called here one day and announced with his beautiful smile: "I've got a lovely surprise for you!" He handed me the October issue of the Mountain Path. I turned to page 195 and read the caption: PAUL BRUNTON AND THE MAHARISHI by, Swami Rajeswarananda. An inset in the article stated that shortly before going to press they had been informed of P.B.'s death. I gazed long and hard at the photo of P.B. whose face I saw for the first time. . . The strange thing is that it is so familiar to me I felt I must have met him.

As I do not know if you get copies of THE MOUNTAIN PATH I will airmail this one to you under separate cover. I felt a distinct shock when I discovered that Paul Brunton is a pen name! In all these years it never once occurred to me that this may be so. Another jolt. . . his real name Raphael Hurst! And your name being Hurst, is this a coincidence? Or are you related to him? I hope that you are.

Thank you too for enclosing the NEWSLETTER of SPIRITUAL FRONTIERS FELLOWSHIP. I have never heard of this Fellowship. I am very interested indeed and hope that I can learn more about it. How I wish it were possible to attend your lectures.

This letter may arrive before Christmas. I wish you a Happy Christmas and all good wishes for 1982.

Again, thank you for your tenderly kind letter, written to a total stranger - but am I?

to start up a general practice, initially with the help of her father but after his death she worked alone until 1960, when her practice became a partnership. She covered the whole range of family medicine with a special interest in domiciliary midwifery. Her great interest in and knowledge of her patients made her loved and respected by all. In the early 1960s Dr Hart served for some years on the Northampton local medical committee.

Clare Hart's greatest love was always her work, from which she retired in 1974, but she had many other interests, among which travel and golf were favourites.—GWW.

A M HUTTON

MRCS, LRCP, FFARCS, DA

Dr A M Hutton, who was consultant anaesthetist emeritus to Guy's Hospital, London, died peacefully at his home on 17 November, just six weeks after the day that he had planned to retire. He was 64.

Andrew Michael Hutton, who was born on 11 April 1916, entered Guy's Hospital from St Paul's School, London, with the intention of obtaining a dual qualification in medicine and dentistry, but soon decided to concentrate on medicine, in which he qualified in 1938. Michael Hutton completed house appointments in medicine and surgery at Guy's before the outbreak of war, when he worked for a short period in the Emergency Medical Service before joining the Royal Army Medical Corps. Most of his war service was spent in the Far East, during which time he became a recognised specialist in anaesthetics with the rank of major and was mentioned in dispatches for distinguished service in Java.

Early in 1946 Hutton returned to Guy's as resident anaesthetist before being appointed to one of the first research fellowships awarded by the Association of Anaesthetists of Great Britain and Ireland. This research work made a valuable contribution to the use of trichloroethylene as an analgesic in obstetrics. During this period he also played an active part with the late Dr E H Rink in providing an anaesthetic service for Mr Russell Brock (as he then was), who had started his pioneer work in cardiac surgery. Hutton was appointed consultant anaesthetist to Guy's Hospital shortly after the advent of the National Health Service and worked with Lord Brock until the latter retired from clinical work. It is a measure of Hutton's ability as an anaesthetist that Brock, who never accepted anything but the best, held him in the highest esteem.

Essentially Michael Hutton was a clinical anaesthetist who took his work very seriously indeed: nothing was left to chance and, when preparing to give an anaesthetic, every conceivable problem was considered and a plan thought out to meet it, and ample time allowed for preparation. He was a kind and gentle person with genuine sympathy for his patients, qualities which made him an outstanding clinician and teacher of anaesthetics. In 1963 Hutton was appointed director of the department of anaesthetics, a post that he held for almost 12 years, during which he built up the department to provide, firstly, an efficient service for the hospital and, secondly, to establish an academic unit. His efforts culminated in the establishment of a professorial chair shortly after he retired.

Michael Hutton was devoted to his family, and the achievements of his children in their different professions gave him considerable pride and pleasure. He had a natural talent for music and enjoyed his social life to the full, and he is survived by his wife Enid and their three children. Their son Peter also qualified at Guy's and is now a senior registrar in orthopaedic surgery.—PJH.

E C DYMOND

BSC, MRCS, LRCP, LMSSA, DPH

Dr E C Dymond, whose professional life was spent in various parts of the world, mainly the Far East, died on 23 November at the age of 78.

Elmslie Chalmers Dymond was born in the Yunnan province of China, where his parents were Methodist missionaries. Jimmy, as he was affectionately known, received his early education at Plymouth Hoe Grammar School, and from there went to Bristol University to take his BSc. Soon after qualifying in 1930 at St Mary's Hospital Medical School, London, he had the urge to return to China, where he was put in charge of the British Hospital on Nantai Island; he was also port health doctor and attended the British Consulate staff. After a brief stay in South Africa in 1933, he returned once more to China and settled in practice in Foochow until he and his wife had to leave in 1938 because of the Sino-Japanese war. After this he served as senior medical officer for petroleum companies in various parts of the world.

Jimmy Dymond was keenly interested in medical missionary work and served as a physician, surgeon, and hospital administrator in mission posts in Basutoland, Nyasaland, and St Joseph's Clinic, Mandeville, Jamaica. His wife Ruby, a nurse, had also trained at St Mary's and she helped him as nurse, chaperon, and dispenser. After taking his diploma in public health at Liverpool in 1946 he worked as medical officer of health under Colonial Office contracts in Nyasaland, Northern Rhodesia, Trinidad, and Jamaica. His work as an MOH prompted his interest and sympathy for coloured people, whom he thought were treated as underdogs in the communities in which he worked, and this sympathy inspired him to take up medical missionary work. Never keen on private practice, Jimmy always hated having to think of money when examining ill patients—one reason why he liked to work under contract.

Dymond loved life at sea and towards the end of his career he served as ship's doctor with the British India Steam Navigation Company in their vessel Sir Lancelot, which was based on Singapore, and in Uganda and Nevea, ending his seafaring in SS Aureol. His wish was that his ashes should be scattered at sea off the coast of Barmouth, North Wales, where he eventually retired—apart, that is, from undertaking the occasional locum.

Jimmy's only hobby was painting, especially in the Chinese style on silk scrolls. At the age of 14 he gained all of the Royal Drawing Society's six certificates with distinction. He joined the Press Art School and received their diploma in 1960; in his youth he wished to take up art, but was dissuaded and took up medicine instead. His silk paintings have been sold abroad as well as in Britain. No mean athlete, Jimmy played rugby for Bristol University and St Mary's Hospital, gaining his cap for England, and he boxed for St Mary's as well as being an amateur boxing champion who boxed in the Royal Albert Hall. A noted American boxing promoter tried to persuade him to become a professional in the States, but in the absence of his parents in China his uncle forbade the venture. Swimming was another sport that gained him cups and medals, especially for high diving. His golf handicap was two.

Dr Dymond was a man of parts with a wry and subtle sense of humour, and was always good company. He became a convert to Roman Catholicism in Trinidad in 1945, but never discussed his faith. He served his generation nobly and always strove to alleviate suffering, especially in the underdeveloped countries. He is survived by his wife and daughter.—IMW.

J P MOREHAN

BSC, MD, DPH

Dr J P Morehan, who was a consultant physician and clinical lecturer at University College, Cork, died at his home in Cork on 8 August. He was 75.

James Patrick Morehan matriculated from the College of the Presentation Brothers, Cork, and later pursued a distinguished medical career in the medical faculty of University College, Cork. After graduating in 1928 he spent some time in hospital medicine, firstly in Wales and later in St Finbarr's Hospital, Cork. Within a short time of completing his hospital intern years James P Morehan began medical practice in Cork and was appointed as a consultant physician to the Bon Secours Hospital and the South Charitable Infirmary. His true métier was soon apparent as he became an outstanding and dedicated teacher in all aspects of clinical medicine. As a result, his ward classes were highly popular and many generations of graduates remember with gratitude his emphasis on scrupulous clinical assessment and his brilliance as a diagnostician. His outstanding talents as a teacher were recognised by his appointment as clinical lecturer in medicine in the medical faculty at Cork.

James P was invariably kind and gentle and listened to his patients' complaints with compassion and understanding, and was unsparing in his efforts on their behalf. In addition, he always treated the nursing staff with respect and was a fair and friendly examiner in the nursing examinations. Despite his hospital work load he played an active part in the local branch of the Irish Medical Association, being a valued member of the Council for several years and a faithful member to the end.

J P Morehan was a large person, both physically and mentally, but withal a modest man with total honesty and integrity of purpose and an all-pervading love of his fellow creatures. He was a lifelong and much loved member of various clubs, including Sunday's Well Tennis and Boating Club, the Cork Golf Club, the Cork and County Club, and he was one of the founder members of the Kinsale Golf Club. Inevitably he was honoured with the presidency of the Past Pupils' Union of his alma mater and renowned rugby school, Presenta-

OF ORIGINAL SILK PAINTINGS

"An exhibition of original silk chinese paintings by Dr. E. C. Dymond of Basutoland will be held at the Ficksburg Public Library from Friday, 17th April.

Dr. Dymond will also lecture on The Art of Chinese Painting at the library on Friday evening April 24th. This is a rare opportunity not to be missed.

Dr. Dymond was born in China at the Chinese end of the Burma Road and educated in Plymouth, England.

At the age of 14 he gained all six certificates of the Royal Drawing Society with distinction. He wished to take up art, but was dissuaded and instead, took up medicine.

After qualifying as a doctor, Dr. Dymond returned to China. Whilst there he became very interested in Chinese art but, apart from some oil paintings, which are in California, did no active work himself.

When stationed in Nyassaland Dr. Dymond decided to take up art again and joined the Press Art School in London. He received their Diploma in 1960.

Dr. Dymond decided to paint in the Chinese manner and continued studying Chinese art. Since then his silk paintings have been selling in Venezuela, Jamaica, California and Britain. This is his first exhibition in South Africa".

Memorial. In November 1980, there died a great man who had made his home in Barmouth. Dr. Elmslie Chalmers Dymond, B.Sc., MRCS, LRCP, LMSSA, DPH. had dedicated his long life to the alleviation of human suffering. He had spent many years serving in hospitals in the Third World, and after coming to retire to Barmouth, he served as Medical Officer to the Ugandan Asians while they were at Tonfannau Camp. With his devoted wife, Ruby, herself a nurse, he had spent all his life in the service of his fellow men, whatever their colour or creed. Grateful friends contributed £672.40 to a memorial fund with which beds have been bought in his memory at St. Mary's Hospital, London, and Twyyn Hospital, Merioneth. An account of his amazing life has been written by his wife, Ruby, a novelist, in her book 'Threads of Circumstance'.

Dear Mr. Hurst,

My letter all the way from India may surprise you, but I've been trying to contact you for sometime and only recently managed to obtain your address. I am an American who has lived in India for seven years working on a very large biography of Meher Baba. The book was actually written by one of Meher Baba's close disciples; I am doing the editing.

I even remember the late Adi K. Irani fondly remembering his meeting with you and subsequent correspondence. You may not know that he died of a heart attack a few years ago.

But the reason for my letter is in hopes that you might be able to help me with the work I am doing. I am trying to collect some original material from Meher Baba in the form of letters to his followers and those who wrote him throughout the world.

I understand your father died in Switzerland, but I am hoping that among his papers there might be some correspondence between himself and Baba. It would be somewhere between 1928-33 or thereabouts.

In addition, when your father came to India to collect material for A SEARCH IN SECRET INDIA...do you know if he himself took some of the photos which appear in the book? I would be most appreciative if you could try to find me the negative or a copy of the photo of Meher Baba which appears on page 54: THE CAVE HOME OF SHRI SADGURU MEHER BABA, for I have never seen this photo elsewhere and no other copies are in the archives here. I would very much like to have a copy for Baba's biography and our archive collection in general.

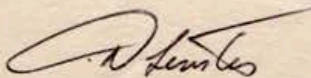

I know how busy you must be, but if you could possibly look for anything in your father's estate referring to Meher Baba, it would be a privilege to add it to our archives -- if not the original then at least a Xerox copy.

If your father had any other original photos of Meher Baba which he himself took, or was given -- and if you have no need for them or desire to keep them yourself -- they would be most welcome here.

I understand that you do a bit of traveling and if you are ever in India, I am enclosing a postcard of a newly built center for persons visiting to stay in -- to tempt you to visit us, and of course Meher Baba's tomb and the many close disciples who are still living here. Hundreds of people from America, England and Australia visit each year.

I am also enclosing an aerogram for your convenience in replying.

Thanking you,

David Fenster

P.S. I almost forgot to also ask you for a photograph of your father circa 1930 to include in the book. There is a drawing in A SEARCH IN SECRET INDIA -- but we wish to include a photo of him taken near the time he met Baba.

Also, what does the "H" stand for in H. Raphael Hirsch or Harst...???

So in short we need:

- * Any correspondence you can find between Meher Baba & your father.
- * Any photos or negatives of Meher Baba (especially the top photo which appears in ASIS India).
- * A photo of your ~~phx~~ father circa 1930.

Also, what does the "M" stand for in M. Meher Bhaba or

Dear Mrs. Dymond -

Thank you so much for sending me the October "Mountain Pass". That was very kind of you and I appreciate it.

I had been in touch with Mr. Gause. I see now Key did not think the obituary I had written especially for Ken!

But Swami Rajeswararanda's article was interesting. I knew Major Fletcher well (Pravarananda) and brought his ashes back from Rangoon in 1961 and persuaded Christmas Humphreys to accept Ken for the Buddhist Society in London! They still reside here.

Well, PB always referred to the Maharshi as "my most revered and Beloved Master." When the latter was dying, Key asked him for any message for Brenton; M replied "When heart beats with heart, what is there to say!"

time spent together was like a blessing and a leave-taking.

embodiment of wisdom and compassion - and a source of great inspiration.

When I visited Paul Brunton I always took my camera with me - but each time I photographed the lake and the mountains, and never suggested that I might photograph P.B. It always seemed so unnecessary, and such a gross intrusion into our conversation or silence.

Now, perhaps I have a slight regret, regarding him as my greatest spiritual friend and advisor - not to possess a visual focus for meditations and inspiration.

I wonder if you can help me I know nothing about you, whether or not you are in a position to have a photograph of Paul Brunton yourself, which could be copied. Or perhaps you would help me to contact someone who might be willing to allow one of their photographs to be reprinted.

This is a very personal request and I assure you that if it can be granted, any material would be for my use alone. I expect it is unnecessary to say this.

With Peace

Thank you so much for your kind note of 16 December. Please forgive me for not having replied sooner. find, but which I managed to locate in Delhi in December, by a "lucky chance", especially since I had the title wrong!

Sir, Dear Friend,

I will thank You heartely for the letter You sent to me on the passing of Paul Brunton, August 3, 1981, only a few days after his passing over on July 27. I got another letter announcing that from Anna Bornstein, Sweden. I hardly can understand Your kindness.

It was for me an ever-memorable matter to meet Dr. Paul Brunton in his home June 27, 1980. I believe I am the only one Finn, who has had such an occasion, and I got many answers to my questions. He also allowed me to take two pictures of him, but because he did not like taking our discussion to my tape-recorder, I tried to remember most of it when sitting in train to Zürich.

I uttered a warm hope to him to write his life story, but he was not willing at all. He told that some one could write it after his passing over. I said, that who could it be, and he answered: Beaumont Glass, e.g. I told that it is impossible, because he does not know very much, although Dr. Brunton was living in his home some years in Switzerland. After that I visited the home of Mr. Glass in Uerikon, Switzerland, just before he left with his wife to USA, having got the professorship in of music in Iowa University. Mr. Glass promised to send to me some photos which described Paul Brunton, and he gave me his address, like follows:

c/o School of Music
University of Iowa
Iowa City
Iowa 52242
U.S.A.

I have sent to him a letter and those two pictures of Mr. Brunton, but I have'nt got any answer. Maybe I have not got the right address.

It would be very important that someone reallyx would write his life story, because the outer and the inner life of a man build a unity for the understanding of the message. Maybe You have idea on this? There is almost no-one, who knows anything being in contact with the running of his life. I think that I am e.g. one of the utmost few who knows such a ^{my} simple fact than that of his birthday: Nov. 27, 1898, about ten oclock. I never heard or read anything from the site of his first home in London, his parents a.s.o. It was a matter of strange reckoning to draw conclusions with him on his first time in India!

What do such details matter? Very much indeed. Everyone who loves Jesus is very happy, if he knows some little detail more from his life. Usually we begin to search our parents too late, just after most of them are away who have known them.

Dr. Brunton mentioned, that just under our discussion one of his books was ⁱⁿ printing office. Has it already been printed? What is the name of the book?

Another matter: The contents of his personal library is one other very important matter. I hope someone would prepare a catalogue from them. If there is already, I were very happy to get it, of course paying for the sending of the copy. The library is always telling very much from the soul of the owner. And the soul is most important.

He told me, that he was planning also some other books. What maybe about them? Always when some of our friends has gone over, we immediately understand, in a glimpse of the time, that we have been near the eternity.

Please, do'nt be afraid, that I will very often disturbe You with some questions. But because I know that You were and are very near him and that You are one the utmost few ones who know him innerly I make so bold as to write. If You cannot answer, I have to understand it. If You are answering, and if You send some papers, please tell the expenses.

God bless the life and the message of Paul Brunton. May God bless Your life, the honoured friend.

Dear Mr. Viro:

I sympathize with your desire to have a biography of Dr. Brunton. I am probably the person most qualified to write one. However I refrain from doing so for two reasons:

- (a) He was strongly opposed to any cult of the individual. He said we must find the "true P.B." within ourselves.
- (b) I really think that his personal affairs were his own private business.

No, no new book has been published since 1952 (SCOM). However I have his 28 notebooks and am assembling a team of his students to sort and compile and we will see if perhaps we could come out with one or two posthumous books in a few years time.

bnv Your suggestion of a catalog OR LISTING of his personal library is an excellent one. His library has been given to a group at Cornell University who are planning to install it in a special building, along with his furniture. Once the listing is prepared I will see you receive a copy.

Dear Mr. Hurst,

I feel I must try to catch up with the mystery of missing letters!

Your hand-written letter of Dec 22 came last week, redirected by you. In this letter you thank me for sending the October MOUNTAIN PATH to you. But you do not mention the letter I posted to you at the same time, Dec 14. You surely would have referred to it had you received it? In that letter I thanked you for your letter of 3 Dec which was so kind I felt, for the first time since Jimmy went, an uplifting of the heart. I also thanked you for sending me the Newsletter of Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship. I had hoped to receive further details about it as I had not heard of it, and I am very interested to learn more about it. Maybe when you have time you will tell me more about it.

Then too, in you 3 Dec letter you say: "Some photographs are being sorted, and I will send you one soon separately." Well, if you have done so I have not received it! You may well imagine how terribly sad this has made me feel.

And then came your letter of March 5. You had talked to Gerd(Lederman). I'm so glad he contacted you but I had hoped that he would have been able to meet you. He is now back in the UK and I hope to see him before long. He sent me a card from Mexico, telling me he had talked to you: ". . .He sounds such a warm, friendly and sincere person." Well, I don't have to be told that - I know it at first hand!

Now about the copy of Mair Cooper's letter to Mr. Foster. The address brought me up with a jerk. Pwllheli is a small town like Barmouth, an hour's train journey, and the end of our line. Then one has to take a bus to get to Aberdaron, at least I would have to as I have no transport other than my feet. Thank you for sending that address.

The strange thing about this possible contact is the fact that Jimmy and I worked with two doctors at Abersoch - about half an hour by car from Aberdaron, which is at the tip of the Llyn peninsular. Jimmy was often called down to Aberdaron and a surgery was held there once a week. So it is quite possible that Mrs. Cooper will know of Jimmy even if she did not see him professionally, especially as we worked there for three summer seasons - three and a half months.

For many, many years I have not^{met} a single soul who had read or be interested in PB, and so I never talk about him to anyone. I wonder what prompted you to send me that address. I will let you know, what, if anything, transpires about this.

I also thanked you for sending me the Newsletter of Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship. I had hoped to receive further details about it as I had not heard of it, and I am very interested to learn more about it. Maybe when you have time you will tell me more about it.

Then too, in your 3 Dec letter you say: "Some photographs are being sorted, and I will send you one soon separately." Well, if you have done so I have not received it! You may well imagine how terribly sad this has made me feel.

And then came your letter of March 2. You had talked to Gert (Lodgerman). I'm so glad he contacted you but I had hoped that he would have been able to meet you. He is now back in the UK and I hope to see him before long. He sent me a card from Mexico telling me he had talked to you: "... He sounds such a warm, friendly and sincere person." Well, I don't have to be told that - I know it at first hand!

How about the copy of Neil Cooper's letter to Mr. Foster. The address brought me up with a jerk. Pwllheli is a small town like Barnmouth, an hour's train journey, and the end of our line. Then one has to take a bus to get to Aberystwyth, at least I would have to as I have no transport other than my feet. Thank you for sending that address.

The strange thing about this possible contact is the fact that Jimmy and I worked with two doctors at Aberystwyth - about half an hour by car from Aberystwyth, which is at the tip of the Llŷdys peninsula. Jimmy was often called down to Aberystwyth and a surgery was held there once a week. So it is quite possible that Mrs. Cooper will know of Jimmy even if she did not see him professionally, especially as we worked there for three summer seasons - three and a half months.

For many, many years I have not a single soul who had read or been interested in PB, and so I never talk about him to anyone. I wonder what prompted you to send me that address. I will let you know, what, if anything transpires about this.

(4) This brings me to one other thing I said in that missing letter. That it had come as quite a shock to discover that Paul Brunton was a pen name, and his real name was Raphael Hurst. Your name being Hurst I wondered if you are related to him, I hope so.

What a perfect answer to the question put to the Maharshi - "When heart beats with heart, what is there to say!"

I remember too how I felt when I ended that letter of mine: "Again, thank you for your tenderly kind letter, written to a total stranger. . .but am I?"

I would still like to know.

Sincerely,

Ruby DeMond.

Dear Mr Keneth Thurston Hurst.

I was very touched to receive you'r lovely letter some time ago, and so glad that my little rose found it's way to my unseen but oh so close to my heart Dr Brunton's shrine.

There is an ocean of unshed tears in my heart, you'r father's farewell to his friend the tree on the Himalaya is very beautiful I feel "Let this cup pass" in it.

Now he walks with the greatest beings, all his sorrows gone for ever I imagine he will go on and on 'till he joins the company of THE FOUR, since he had already been acquainted with them.

It is a sad loss for us all, but not for him.

I practice what he has taught us. just know that I am eternally grateful to him, and I hope that he will somehow know this.

Thank YOU so very very much for bringing Ruby Dymond and I together. It was a little miracle to receive a copy of her book and that you had made all this possible. Perhaps you'r dear father is still working through you.

Am wondering if you have received any messages or anything from you'r father

I feel like going "up, there" to fetch him back, but that would be completley selfish, and dreadful to bring him back to this MAD planet. We must be very grateful to have had him, and try and do as he did.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart, may God's blessings fall upon you, and keep you always.

From one who loves you'r father

Dear Mr Keneth Thurston Hurst.

Ruby Dymond informed me when I asked her as to what Prentice-Hall International stood for, she looked it up in the writers and artist's year book, so I know now.
In the first instance when I wrote to Dr Brunton's publishers I had asked for Dr Brunton's permission to quote from page sixty four of 'The secret Path'. Would you Mr Hurst, as his son please give me this permission.

Dr Brunton to my great delight verified many things that were "given" to my late husband.

My book is a biography in so much as something rare and wonderful happened in our lives. It takes the whole book to explain all. Briefly, my husband and I were true affinities, for two years before we met even he, and a group of mediums were receiving messages from my higher mind, and from one calling herself Nona. His daughter also received many messages from my higher mind even though she lived in the south of England, and I knew not of her existence.

Many Truths were given to my husband, and the mediums, and that he would meet his affinity in this realm now. It all came to pass and we were married, we were to become One Being, and the process had begun when he died.

There are no words to describe the feeling, except to say that it was a "complete" feeling, the search for anything at all over. accompanied with a deep inner peace.

This is why that I was so happy to read many things that were said to him, by automatic writing and clareaudience, were verified in many instances by your father.

Winston, my husband went back in time to the dawn of creation. and our minds were totally occupied night and day analysing what he had received.

This Easter was new life indeed for me in the form of a book which was handed to me from the most unlikely person, and is for me The pearl of Great Price. It is from none other than Osiris himself, through the mediumship of another as far back as 1925.

I have asked, and prayed with all my heart for true understanding of all that has happened, even asked your father, Dr Brunton in my meditations to pass his thoughts to me. and am just wondering if it is him who has directed this most valuable book to me. It is called THE BOOK OF TRUTH, or THE VOICE OF OSIRIS.

Published by Rider. I have written to them asking if they have any spare copies, it is too early to expect a reply.

I KNOW, that it is the word of TRUTH, and what the world is crying for to know. It is so beautifully written, so very simple and concise. In it he explains all we humans need to know in our present stage of evolution re Father-Mother God. and our descent from them to Adam, who was called EL Daud Evam. and was the father of Osiris. Osiris has given word by word translation of the statutes given by EL Daud, his father, to the Adhamics on Atlantis, together with detailed description of the temples that were built in Khemu, (Egypt) to lodge them, and which will be found in this the Aquarian Age by the one who has been chosen to find them since the days of the heights of Atlantis. The Truth about the virgin birth is there, and is so simple really, but Satanaku, covered it up for humanity, as he took over, defying God the Father Mother. Satan was the second son of God, named Eranus. Jesus was the first son, and Osiris the third son, All were born eternally wed in Divine heaven, as son- daughters.

Perhaps you have read this book. Somehow I feel powerfully that it has been given to me. and as if I am the only one who has a copy.

when I receive permission to quote from this again.
Osiris says that all the temples he describes will be found intact except one, which was the Master Initiates, and Adepts. This was built in the form of pillars tapering at the top to form a pyramid, and the weight of soil and sand has over the centuries has caused it fall in When the last word goes into this book that I am writting now, I feel my life's work will be accomplished, appart from "'becoming" myself.

Now to find it a publisher. I can not accept any offers of money for my book, as it is mostly the word of God to humanity, through our own experience, Dr Brunton, and the only Master Initiate that Egypt ever had, OSIRIS.

I am going to ask you personally Mr Hurst if you, would please read this my book, with a view to publishing.

I would send it by air mail, I do know that you have a branch in London, but it is you, that I would like to read it. will you please?.

It is not a heavy dull book, boreing one to tears, the few who have read it find it compulsive reading, but no one has read it in it's finished state, and no one will until it finds a publisher.

Would ypu please place these little primroses in you'r father's shrine from me. Thank you.

Looking forward to hearing from you

You's in great anticipation.

Blessings -

Maiv E Croper.

Dear Mr Kenneth Thurston Hurst.

Thank you so very very much for the most wonderful letter that I received today. I am so very happy to have Dr Bruntow's photograph, and have placed him inside a little antique leather frame, it looks really nice I shall be talking much with him, it is really wonderful to have this, & am so grateful to you for your great kindness in sending it to me - He is looking at me now as I write to you, an utterly beautiful person. so much tenderness in his eyes - that my heart is full of tears. It truly wakes up the profoundest thoughts and feelings in me about life - the human beings - travelling the road back to the Godhead, as he has done - and it shows - I have the greatest reverence for him. - Thank you.

Was happy to find out that Sri Ramana Maharshi - is also dear to the heart of Ruby Dymond - who will be coming to stay with me soon, I look forward to this. & you can be sure that our main topic of conversation will be Dr Bruntow - and Sri Ramana.

Thank you - so very much too, for your willingness to read "Telek", (the flower that does not fade), and your further wonderful kindness, in sending it to another publisher, if unsuitable to your own publication requirements - and thank you, for letting me quote from Dr Bruntow's book "The secret path", I will do all you ask me. am so grateful.

I have done a couple of illustrations in water col. & am not very happy with them. I know they would need to be expertly done, am not very fond of water colours. but I love oil paints.

I have also quoted from "The Book of Truth - or The Voice of Osiris - by El. Esor - having had the kind permission of Rider to do this.

Dear Mr Kenneth Th. Hurst.

Thank you for taking my book, I am so happy about it,

I have never typed before, and only with the greatest effort and multitudes of mistakes, reams of paper & tape. But I have managed to produce this. Do hope that it is not too bad.

You know, Mr Hurst, at one time I really thought that all the adverse powers were totally intent on ruining my efforts to finish it. The typewriter always went wrong. The wind blew the caravan door open at night. & it rained and blew in so that all my paper, neatly bundled were scattered everywhere. and saturated. At well - I had to start again. This caravan was used to house anybody turning up, and who wanted a bed, if the house was full - A friend of my son arrived late at night. fumbled about in the dark. all the newly typed pages scattered everywhere, as yet unnumbered. It took me days to have them all straight again. Constant interruptions from people who never normally call. I began to think the powers that be were trying to make me give up. So I cried out one day "How starting your time - for I will finish it"; so I really feel triumphant. & strange but true - towards the very last chapter. "The voice of Orrin" - nothing went wrong. even this funny typewriter went without a hitch. and no one called. & as if I was given the right conditions. I've won! I've won! I am so happy.

Thank you for ever and ever.

Hope so much that you will enjoy reading it.

Dear Kenneth Hurst,

So much thinking has gone on since I received your welcomed letters of Easter Sunday, and 1st May. It is impossible for me to enlarge on what it means to me to have this photo of Paul Brunton, and to add to that, the joy of knowing that you are indeed his son. I had hoped it would be so. Yes, of course I like his photo, especially seeing his eyes, which are, as I had expected so full of kindness and absolute integrity.

What a surprise to learn that you were in Pwllheli and in the Royal Navy some forty years ago! And what a leap. . .the Royal Navy. . .then finally President of Prentice Hall. . . What adventures lie between these two extremes. Maybe your life has been as eventful as your father's.

Thank you too for the literature of SFF. Oh, my goodness, what a concentrated programme on all aspects of ESP! I have just finished reading a book - ENA TWIGG - MEDIUM. You must surely know about her, for in this book several times she refers to people from SFF. She seems a remarkably well balanced person, and most loveable. What tremendous courage she has and such physical endurance. . .an unenviable thing, being a medium!

I have recently re-read your father's HIDDEN TEACHING BEYOND YOGA. And am about to re-read my copy of WISDOM OF THE OVERSELF. Weighty subjects, especially when I add TALKS with SRI RAMANA MAHARSHI. There are times when my mind becomes dizzy with too many thoughts and queries. So I escape from the flat and up the mountain to be with the trees, bracken and sheep. I wonder if when you were a naval cadet, you visited Barmouth? If so you will know where I go as often as possible to seek the silence of the hills. There are times too when I long to take life more lightly and laugh with a friend!

Which reminds me. . .I wonder if your secretary got to the bottom of those trunks sent on to you from Switzerland? Probably not. I think you would have mentioned it had you come across those letters of mine, and THREADS OF CIRCUMSTANCE.

I have put in my phone number, just in case some miracle happens and you are in London. It is Ex-directory. I know it is highly improbable that we shall ever meet, but it would be splendid just to talk to you on the phone for a while.

Again, my deepest thanks to you for sending me your father's photo.

And my warmest good wishes at all times.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr Kenneth Thunton Hunt.

Thank you for your letter received yesterday. and for spending your valuable time reading Telet. If there is a reading fee, please let me know, + I shall send it with the postage when the book returns to me.

I must admit. that I feel like a piece of crumpled up tin foil at first. all funny shapes inside. but thank to Dr Branton - I squashed the "I" feeling. I will eventually do as you expect, and it again. somehow.

I am remembering, that Dr Branton passed on to a better world than this one - just one year ago.
but he lives on, in our hearts, in his valuable works.

Thank you again - so much. and for contacting the other publishers - it was lovely of you.

With every blessing.

Dear Kenneth T. Hurst,

Thank you so much for sending the requested photograph of Paul Brunton to me. Your telephone call, taken by my mother, advising me of the delay was also much appreciated. The photograph is indeed suitable for meditation!

I am very interested to hear that you hope to publish extracts from P.B.'s notebooks. Perhaps you would let me know when they become available for purchase.

I too am leaving for India, hopefully sometime in late Autumn. I have no expectations as such, but feel the need of instruction and the inspiration of a living guide. There seem to be particular stages in life when this is crucial.

Once again thank you for all your communications concerning Paul Brunton ~ I wish you peace and happiness.

Dear Mr Hurst.

I thank you very much for your letter and the information about Dr Paul Brunton's death.

One day I came to read one of Dr Brunton's books, rather by coincidence. There was something in his first book,

"a search in Secret India" that aroused my attention and I wanted to read his other works, which I did.

At that time I was much involved in Yoga, a bit dormant at present due to circumstances of happenings in Yoga here.

I have of course read much about Yoga, practiced it a lot and I am what I term a "Believer in the Truth of Yoga" and it is this ultimate Truth which I found in Dr Brunton's works "The Hidden Teaching beyond Yoga" and "The wisdom of the Overself".

I should mention that I am a "born and bred" Catholic and have been, and still I am in a way, involved in the activities of "Catholic Christianity". But maybe just because of this, my search had to go further and I found Yoga. In Yoga I found sometimes a deeper fulfillment of my spiritual hunger than in my own Catholic faith. I became therefor a member of "Self Realisation Fellowship" founded by the Sainthly Yogi Paramahansa Yogananda and I am sure that you in America have heard of him and may well know more about his works.

Now, I have come to some sort of conclusion that the basic Truth of Yoga, is basic also in the works of many Yogis from India (the "real" ones I mean) also in the works of the Christianity of Jesus. I, in particular, like St. John the apostle, his writings are surely based on

Dear Mr. Friend

I have your very kind letter and the information which it contains. I have been thinking of it ever since I read it and I have been wondering how you could have been so kind as to write to me in this way. I did not think you would mention it. I have been at present very busy with my work and I have not had time to write to you. I am sorry to hear that you are not well. I hope you will soon be able to get on your feet again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again.

I should be very glad to hear from you again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again.
I am sure you will be very glad to

will be very glad to hear from me
again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again.

That I have been so long without of writing to you is the cause of my trouble. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again.
I am sure you will be very glad to

glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again. I am sure you will be very glad to hear from me again.

Knowledge of Yoga, which Jesus must have taught him and other Apostles.

But even in the works of Sainth, Yogananda, I have not found anywhere such deep, profound, beautiful explanations of the Truth of Yoga but in those 2 works of Dr Brunton. In very crude words and language I may say "He hits the nail on the head" it sounds rather vulgar but I can "feel" Dr Brunton is correct. I don't know why, but I KNOW that his explanation is absolute irrefutable, it just cannot be denied, he is so correct, so right, and it is this Philosophy of his that I yearn for to study closer and better. But how?

Is there any way, method, lessons, people I can contact, learn from, study, discuss these 2 great works of Dr Brunton, I would just love to learn from people who also KNOW that his is Truth beyond doubt.

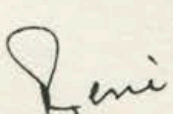

I am a family man and thus cannot, as yet, travel to places I as I would like to, to meet such people. Could you satisfy my desire?

I realize that Dr Brunton had students and as you mentioned you have been one of them. So, I assume there may be lessons, or further additional books and writings of which I do not know of.

May I please hear from you?!

I would be most grateful.

Thank you so very much and my best wishes to you also and my kindest regards

Donald Weiser is reprinting four of my father's books and asked me to write a one page appreciation to appear following the copyright (verso) page. It seems a good idea to let readers know he is dead and also to satisfy slightly their curiosity about him.

If you agree, could you please arrange to have this piece used in future Editora Pensamento's printings. Many thanks.

Dear Kenneth T. Hurst

Perhaps you will remember that we briefly corresponded last year, when you informed me of the death of Paul Brunton, and later kindly sent a photograph of P.B. which I had requested. In your last letter you mentioned that there were plans to publish "extracts from P.B.'s voluminous journals", either last year, or this year.

I am wondering how far this has progressed, or if the books have actually been published and I have simply not come across the details. As I work in a large Reference library I suspect that it is unlikely I have overlooked any publication announcements in the usual sources.

I am sorry to trouble you again but am desperately eager to know what is happening about the journals and when/if they will be available in any form.

Dear René Beresford,

Dr. Brentano's last book was "The Spiritual Basis of Man" published in 1953. But I am retiring at year-end to supervise editing of his voluminous notebooks; perhaps we can then publish one or two posthumous books by him in a couple of years. I'll notify you when the time comes.

PB spent some time in Auckland 20 years ago. I visited him there. He told me he had met people there interested in his teachings; but I don't have their names handy. When I retire I plan to go through his files of reader letters and organize them by country. I'll then let you know if I find any N.Z. names.

Meanwhile you may wish to write to Dr. Frank Clarke, 145 St. Johns Avenue, Gordon, NSW 2072, Australia. He is also an advanced student of PB and knew him. Dr. Clarke is a univ. professor and also a family man.

Dear Mr Hurst,

I recently wrote to the Rider Publishing Co requesting information on your late father Dr. Paul Brunton and was sorry to learn that he passed away in 1981. The publishers gave me your name and address and said that you would perhaps answer any queries I might have on Dr Brunton. It is therefore with this in mind that I write to you now.

I first read Dr Brunton's books when I was a teenager living in Canada, and although a number of years have passed since then, his books have been a constant source of help and inspiration to me in my search for Truth. I always found your father's teachings to be so sensible, so practical and so well-balanced. How marvellous it would have been to have met and to have talked to him. I am sure that that is something so many people over the world also would have wished for.

I realize that a period of thirty years elapsed between the date your father published his last book and the time of his passing away. I have often wondered what he did

Dear Mr. Thomas

I recently wrote to the Public Librarian re requesting information on your late father. The Public Librarian says to him that I passed away in 1981. The Librarian gave me your name and address and said that you would perhaps know my father. I might find in the Librarian.

It is difficult with the in mind that I write to you now. I find that the Librarian wrote when I was a teenager living in Canada, and although a number of years have passed since then, he looks like a constant source of help and information to me in my search for truth. I always found your father's teachings to be reasonable, practical and in line with the world. I would have been to him and to have talked to him. I am sure that that is something we many people in the world who would have wished for. I realize that a number of things you shared with me that you father published in the book and the time of his passing away. I have often wondered what he did during that period, and as modern society has changed quite dramatically since the time he last wrote, I have also often wondered what his thoughts were on the state of society and on the future development of world affairs.

I do not suppose that your father left any kind of organization, but if he did, I would be grateful for any details you could give me on this. In short, I would truly appreciate any information you could give me on your late father. Is there perhaps a biography planned?

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours sincerely

Thomas Scott.

Dear Kenneth -

I have been plenty emotional that day when we met. But as P.B. said we understand each other, so there is a feeling we understand each other, too. P.B. asked me -

Do you write Diary?

PS - I do.

PB - Do you write in the middle of the night?

PS - Not quite so, I write in the morning.

PB - Go on writing.

As I said, this ~~Self~~^{Self} became a blank cassette and took in all the impressions on it as commands - A computer and He was the Programmer. Ever since it was possible to write down all the spiritual experiences even in their greatest height, the hand moved automatically. A grace indeed - a Power bestowed with command.

He said you are going to see many things. Indeed, there were many things.

Usually, people see things ~~fx~~ before they reach destination. It was a reverse process in this case. I was taken to the height as if in a jet and came back walking enjoying every inch of the journey.

He said "There is no time & space."

And twice in this life when there was a difficult decision to reach and tenacious attachment to sever, I heard PB's deep voice calling my name aloud, - once so happened I hurriedly came down a flight of steps hoping to see him in the portico. And the problem melted as dew in the sun, decision instant, and detachment immediate. Indeed there ~~was~~ space & time barrier.

After coming back from Los Angeles, when we met (Esther & myself) did a bit of Europe. As I reached Rome at about midnight, a past life unfolded in front of me and the three days we were in Rome it was re-living that life once again as transported by a time machine into centuries ways back. Fortunately, that went away as the train to Marci pulled just 30 miles from Rome. It was not easy, but with His Grace Purnima survived.

I do not know how many shares such experiences as it happened her. A sympathetic ear has opened the flood-gate pent up for long 30 years. A sympathetic vibration - what is He (PB)? It is very difficult, nay impossible to express oneself in words. Those who are in the realm of duality and never tasted the eternity will not understand what I am trying to say. They will think that we are eulogising a Personality. But those who ever aspired for the Person sometimes that Person manifests through a personality for our overall satisfaction, so that we may apprehend that even through our sense organs and thus divinise all of them. This is the meaning of transformation (what is much talked in the Aurobindo Philosophy) as I understand. But whether this can happen in a mass-scale, I have a doubt because the ripeness of the individual can not be excluded. It may happen to a particular person in a specific time because we are in different rungs of the evolution. So the thing I feel & say to you about PB are not for every ear. No wonder I wanted to meet you alone, not at a meeting. And a Self imposed restriction about meeting all and sundry. Our words are not understood, real aspirants (mumukshu) are rara-avis (rare-birds) and hence a natural solitary & secluded life in 'silence'.

The time was pressing, so there was talk about the few things he said to me. May we ~~meet again~~ some other time.

I thank you.

To be a man once again

cont'd...

It is very difficult, nay impossible to express oneself in words. Those who are in the realm of quality and never tasted the eternity will not understand what I am trying to say. They will think that we are eulogising a Personality. But those who ever aspired for the Person sometimes that Person manifests through a personality for our overall satisfaction, so that we may apprehend that even through our sense organs and thus divine all of them. This is the meaning of transformation (what is much talked in the Aurobindo Philosophy) as I understand. But whether this can happen in a mass-scale, I have a doubt because the ripeness of the individual can not be excluded. It may happen to a particular person in a specific time because we are in different rungs of the evolution. So the thing I feel & say to you about PB are not for every ear. No wonder I wanted to meet you alone, not at a meeting. And a self-imposed restriction about meeting all and sundry. Our words are not understood, real aspirants (mumukshus) are rare-birds (rare-birds) and here a natural solitary & secluded life in 'silence'.

The time was pressing, so there was talk about the few things he said to me. May we meet again some other time.

I thank you.

With love

Yours

The letter was about to go and your's arrived. I decided to leave PB's 2 years' photo and your message. Boy why do you have to send me a fat cheque. All these years I avoided touching PB's book knowing well that his English is beyond my horizon and now this. Well, I accept it with due humility & misgiving - am I competent? At the new revised edition come out and those and blessings of PB are ours - that's perhaps.

Let the new revised edition come out and thousand blessings of PB on me - then Perhaps.

Thanking you once again

Dear Ken

Thank you for your letter and the enclosure of your address to the conference. It was a pleasure to read - I hope your message is widely understood by those in a position to change the world. All of us I guess.

I am on holiday for two weeks - most of my time will be spent preparing the house for David's parents. Some much needed interior decorations are being done and I am trying to ensure that the garden is a riot of colour in the summer. It looks lovely at present with all the usual and some unusual spring flowers - a lovely time of year.

→ I listened to Desert Islands Discs on Friday, it must be our longest running radio programme, and Christopher Reeve (star of Superman 1, 2 & 3) chose his six favourite records. The guest is also asked to choose one book, the bible and Shakespeare are already on the island, to take and he chose The Inner Reality by Paul Brunton! He is starring in the Aspen Papers in London at the moment.

I am going to see Helga tomorrow. She sounded a little depressed on the telephone - Miss Nunn has been in hospital - broken hip - but is home now.

Dearest Kenneth -
We send you
Easter greetings,
And wishes that this Season of re-birth and renewal will shower its blessings upon you.

You are often in our thoughts and we are so grateful you are working so hard to carry on P.B.'s great message to the world.

I had a vivid dream early this year I'd like to share with you.

Melody & I met P.B. again.
He was surrounded by overwhelming peace, love, joy. We accompanied him to the place where we were living. I started to reveal to him how I felt about life with all its conflicts, goodness, etc.

He didn't reply, just sweetly asked me if I had any writing materials as he wanted to dictate some urgent letters to peepers.

He had a lovely rainbow colored lace daily. He wanted to send to someone. I hastened to carry out his wishes with joy in my heart & when I wrote (it was so vivid like life this dream) these words were written in my heart -

"Action to god is better than philosophizing." I felt LOVE surrounding & radiating from me. A beautiful gift from P.B.

The comforter has come to us after the unheorable pain of loss, thru many dreams. I feel his presence within, and am so grateful.

Please send me news at the work when you feel the time is right. P.B.
