There are mystics who have developed a considerable depth of meditation. They come back from their session of practice feeling the peace they have touched, but at the same time they come back smugly satisfied with the experience, and especially with the attainment it seems to point towards. This is not enough. Even if they go apparently to the apex of the stillness the ego has traveled with them. They may be aware of where they have been but they were aware that they were aware. Thus there was duality in what they thought was unity. Do not praise the ego for having found God. It was Grace which brought about the discovery. It was not the ego. It is true that the beginner needs humility but it is even more true that the advanced man needs even more humility.

The seeker after stillness should ~~be~~ be told that the stillness is always there. Indeed it is in every man.
But he has to learn first, to let it in and second, how to do so. The first beginning of this is to remember. The second is to recognize the inward pull.
For the rest the stillness itself will guide and lead him to itself.

(XVII) ①

It is a transcendental idea that the mind gets hold of and knows.

It is a gathering of clear supra-mental perceptions. It is the higher reason, the discriminating understanding. It penetrates the whole being and remains. Thus it becomes naturalized and continues the natural consciousness of the man.

ZEN

(XXVIII) Life ^{bears} ~~contains~~ some beautiful moments to us, but also some sad ones. This is its inherent nature, the way things are.

() There is no other remedy for human suffering of the emotional kind than this acceptance of truth: all else is alleviation
