Editor's Note: This file should be considered alongside "PB's Library." This file was in use until 1980, the year before PB's death. I know, because I worked on it (and nearly lost it at the Lausanne library). There are many fragmentary or dated references we were unable to clarify, but we were able to improve the clarity of the document. We wrote out many of the abbreviations, since PB did not always use the same form for those abbreviations. A tricky one is "biblio" which can refer to "bibliography" or the French word for library – "bibliotheque." Some of the entries were marked by an 'x' and some by a circled 'x' (⊗); these indicate books that PB found at some point. The entries marked with ⊗ appear to all relate to the large library in Lausanne, Switzerland which PB visited frequently regardless of which small Swiss town he was living in. Sometime PB marked an entry with LNE for "Lausanne Library" or UNIV LNE for the library at the University of Lausanne. Some of these were further marked with ⊗LNE reminding PB that the book could be read at the Lausanne Library. Many of the entries have three letters, or a series of letters and numbers; these are the various forms of internal reference identities used in the libraries and have no real relevance to the books themselves.

PB also marked some pages as "Lending Library List" or "Lending List." The former is clear enough: many of the libraries he visited (including the ones in Lausanne) only allowed their patrons to read the books in the building; a library that let you take a book home was fairly rare, and those were called Lending Libraries. The "Lending List" pages could also refer to such a library or possibly to books which PB had on hand and which he was willing to lend out. We know that PB had a personal library of several thousand titles at the time of his death, so it is possible he kept some record of lending books, or of books he planned to lend.

We have opted to make the default heading "Lib List." If there is a different heading on the original page we have made that a subheader under "Lib List." We have indicated whenever the subheader ends and the pages revert to the default heading by inserting a new "Lib List" header. We have titled the last section "Handwritten Entries for Lib List" as the pages are almost exclusively PB's handwritten notes from the 1960s and 70s, many referring to libraries in Switzerland. A few have notes by myself, when I was doing research for PB in Lausanne, and those are noted as such. Since there is little to no text here, we did not introduce our para-page identifiers and instead refer to the sections as "entries." Names and titles have only been checked for spelling if the typing was unclear in the original or a spelling change was made (to determine if the change was correct or not). Otherwise, except for instances where a comment has been left or the name/title has been inserted in curly brackets, names/titles have been typed as they appear.

For more information about some of the people and texts PB quotes or references here, please see the file titled "Wiki Standard Info for Comments." For more information about the editorial standards and spelling changes we have implemented, please see the file titled "Introductory Readers' Guide." Whenever there is any question as to whether what is typed is what PB wrote, please consult the associated scan of the original pages, currently to be found in a PDF of the same name. – Timothy Smith (TJS), 2020

{Lynn}¹ Thorndike: “A History of Magic and Experimental Science II”, London, 1923 (Pietro d’Abano)

“East and West” published in Rome now edited by Tucci, a quarterly (see Verona issues).

Dilys Powell: “An Affair of the Heart” – Account of life in post-war Greece by British woman journalist.

Defoe’s² “English Use of English” is pellucid but unpretentious: gets its message over with economy and competence.

Georgina Masson: “Queen Christina” (of Sweden) published Dec. 1968, a 400 page biography. This is the best, completest, most accurate and objective as against many of her biographies that are false, wrong, biased. Queen Christina was “an astute politician, but made many errors of judgement... was inordinately proud and arrogant, was an adept at dissembling and would often stoop to lying. She was a shrewd judge of persons but could always be fooled by specious and good looking rascals.... Although she became very devout in her last years, she hardly mentions Christ in her writings; it is doubtful whether she believed in the Incarnation and the Redemption... slanderous books about her continue to be published (even now) based in large part on the scandal sheets issued by her enemies. She was said to be a hermaphrodite. She had an aversion to childbirth. Her conversion to Catholicism was calculated: she believed she could fine more toleration and freedom in it than in Lutheranism; she found it the most convenient for travelling. She said ‘the fable of Christ is of great use to the Roman Church’. Her religious calm was shattered by the discovery that her confessor Molinos was a heretic and guilty of sexual aberrations with his women devotees.”³ (1) Queen Christina believed in religious freedom and lack of racial prejudice. [⊗LNE]³⁶¹ "Esoteric Teachings of the Tibetan Tantra", edited by Charles A. Muses, translated by Chang Chen Chi. This pithy volume gathers together between its covers two basic handbooks of Tibetan teaching hitherto undisclosed to the West - a set of tantric initiation rituals and the "Six Yogas of Naropa" with Tsongkhapa's commentary. Even in Tibet the Tantric Initiation Rituals are hard to come by. The manuscript contains a remarkable chapter on prophecy, which was doubtless destined to come to light at this time. The prophecy dating from at least the 17th century prefigures the Red Chinese desecration of Tibet. Professor Chang makes a competent translator, as he became familiar with technical lamaistic usage and phrasing during the course of a stay of years in Tibet's famous eastern provinces of Kham. Died. Yvor Winters, 67, poet, critic and long time (1937-66) Stanford literature professor;³⁶⁵ of cancer; in Palo Alto, California. As a critic, he was formidable, engaging his peers in bitter polemics. He preferred Robert Bridges to T.S. Eliot, once called Ezra Pound "a barbarian loose in a museum." His own poetry, for which he won Yale's 1960 Bollingen Prize, was a mirror of the man, cool, sharp, diamond-hard, as in his definition of his work: Few minds will come to this. / The poet's only bliss / Is a cold certitude - / Laurel, archaic, rude. Florida Scott-Maxwell: "The Measure of My Days". At eighty-two Mrs Scott-Maxwell felt impelled to write about her strong reactions to being old, and to the time in which we live. Until almost the end this note book was not intended for anyone to see, but the author finally decided that she wanted her thoughts and feelings to reach others. Mrs Scott-Maxwell writes: "I was astonished to find how intensely one lives in one's eighties. The last years seemed a culmination and by concentrating on them one became more truly oneself. Though old I felt full of potential life. It pulsed in me even as I was conscious of shrinking into final form which it was my task and stimulus to complete." The territory of the old is not Mrs Scott-Maxwell's only concern. In taking the measure of the sum of her days as a woman of the twentieth century, she confronts some of the most disturbing conflicts of human nature – the need for differentiation as against equality, the recognition of the evil forces in our nature – and her insights are challenging and illuminating. The vision that emerges from her accumulated experience of life makes this a remarkable document that speaks to all ages. (Oct. 1968).

William G. Gray: "The Ladder of Lights". Here is a step by step guide to the Tree of Life and the four worlds of the Kabbalists.⁴⁰⁹ Israel Regardie was greatly impressed by this commentary. The author claims the Tree of Life works in relation to consciousness just like a computer. The Tree operates through the intelligent consciousness of living beings, whether embodied in this world or not. It acts as a sort of Universal Exchange throughout the entire chain of consciousness sharing its scheme and the extent of this is incalculable. The Tree provides the means of receiving Inner World contacts with types of consciousness normally inaccessible to the ordinary human mind. Practical occult experience is only possible to those who work the Tree through the Four Worlds of the Kabbalists.⁴¹⁰ The study of this work holds promise for the individual.

A.J. Arberry, Translator of: "A Sufi Martyr". The book, "The Apologia" here translated, was composed by an eminent Sufi mystic, Ayn al-Quzat Hamadani,⁴¹¹ while in prison in Baghdad, awaiting execution, in a vain attempt to overthrow his sentence; he was cruelly put to death in A.D. 1131 at the age of thirty-three. This apologia is a document of great poignancy, composed in most elegant Arabic, and translated with equal elegance. Professor Arberry has long been recognised as the greatest living {interpreter}⁴¹² of Islamic texts.

Freud would be about your best source of fact and theory. Once an insight is gained into his mental framework – all the others are simultaneously exposed to view. Even where they disagree, or recoil it's still within his scale of {reference}⁴⁶⁵

The American handbook would give an all around explanation but somewhat spotty.

The enquiry [is]⁴⁶⁷ often made by those who wish to study more widely and more deeply as to what books we recommend which will contribute to a fuller understanding of these tenets. Unfortunately there is not in existence a single book which treats in a modern way of them as a whole from the special standpoint which we have adopted. However, there are other excellent studies of individual tenets, albeit from other standpoints. If their limitations are firmly kept in mind, these studies may profitably be considered and will undoubtedly be helpful in building up the picture of our system. The recommended titles are as follows:

"The Grammar of Science" by Karl Pearson.

1891 Dr theology, dissertation on Shaftesbury. A number of years Protestant clergyman, later devoted himself wholly to philosophic and literary studies. No other Dutch philosopher has reached so many in the period between the two world wars. His style was literary. In 1907 he founded the Dutch "Tijdschrift voor Wijsbegeerte" = Review for Philosophy. His philosophy was mystical. Although it contains elements of Plato, Spinoza, Kant and Hegel it has its own character. It is metaphysical idealism with as its practical purpose inner harmony.

He often lectured at the International School for Philosophy at Amersfoort.
